HOUSE TO BOOST TAX BILL, ALTER RATE ON INCOME

Many In 'Middle-Class' To Be Added To List Paying Share To Government

200 MILLIONS NECESSARY

Lowering Of Exemptions Of Single Persons May Be Initial Step

WASHINGTON, June 5—The House ways and means committee today voted to boost the Doughton $656,000,000 tax bill by at least $200,000,000 and to broaden the income tax base to bring in new taxpayers and increase rates on so-called middle-class income.

A tax sub-committee headed by Rep. Cooper (D) Tenn., was instructed to draft a new tax bill for the full committee.

"We will consider broadening the tax base," said Chairman Doughton (D) N. C. "The sub-committee is instructed to prepare amendments to raise at least $200,000,000 more and a larger amount if it is necessary to adjust the burden equitably. If we get taxes out of the middle brackets, it may be necessary to make other adjustments."

The tentative committee plan includes proposed lowering of the exemption for single persons from $1,000 to $800 and for married persons from $2,500 to $1,800. It also includes an increase in taxes on middle groups incomes, especially those between $5,000 and $60,000.

May Boost Excess Profits

Committee leaders were considering boosting the excess profits tax or proposing a new so-called "war profits tax" to recapture most of the profits made under the new defense program.

Set back by the administration's new billion dollar defense plan—announced two days after a $656,000,000 tax bill was agreed on—the ways and means committee voted to raise the debt limit from $45,000,000,000 to $49,000,000,000 and levy additional taxes.

By Pierre J. Huss
WITH THE GERMAN ARMIES IN BELGIUM, June 4—(Delayed in transmission)—Captured soldiers of the British Expeditionary Force and the French army started their weary march to Berlin today. They poured out of the old World War battlefields by the countless thousands. Before me as I watched this parade of defeated men lay

Ypres, scarred and ravaged as in the last war. The famed Menin Gate still stands, but it bears evidence of the furious fighting which raged for some days in this locality. The Ypres cemetery escaped unscathed, but the bridge approaching the town was blown up.

Strangely, there is little evidence of fighting at Ghent except where fortified positions outside the city stood as a fruitless bulwark to the German advance. The debris of war is plentiful there.

The city of Bruges remained untouched. It was from Belgian army headquarters there that King Leopold surrendered. Ostend was damaged by bombing of military objectives.

The military prisoners who began their march today are congesting roads and temporary prison camps in the areas of Lille, Arras and Cambrai to Ypres, Dixmude, Nieupoort and Ostend.

Picture Depressing

Throughout all these regions there is the same depressing picture of unshaven, dusty, disarmed, gaunt-eyed and confused men, shuffling along the roads with their packs, under the eyes of German guards. They are Hitler's prisoners. Many of them don't seem to care what happens next.

These are the men who were harried by the blitzkrieg which pierced 200 miles from the French and Belgian borders into northwestern France, Flanders and the coastal regions. They were attacked hour after hour by terrifying Stukas, Heinkels and Messerschmitts and shoved further and further back along the broad concrete highways from Sedan to Maubeuge.

I have driven over the principal roads during the last few days. Every mile of the way is strewn with British and French arms, wreckage, abandoned supplies, munitions, guns, ruined batteries and dead animals.

The Germans broke the Maginot Line extension in front of Maubeuge. I passed by scores of shattered pill-boxes, which obviously were unable to withstand German bombs and shells, as well as innumerable useless anti-tank traps, steel-barriers and barbed wire positions.

In the small town of Beaumont, a number of the famous French 30-ton tanks were surprised by Stuka dive-bombers. Eight of them were left standing as mere scrap-iron in a narrow street.

Minor Damage in Cambrai

The war hit Maubeuge, where resistance was attempted, and then jumped like a mid-western tornado without hurting the landscape to Cambrai, where heavy fighting took place outside the town. There was only minor damage in the interior.

The main street of Arras leading to the railway station took a beating, but otherwise the city was untouched. Armistices was hit in a few places, but is generally intact. A village just outside contains a small house with a concrete plaque asserting that Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler was quartered there as a lance corporal in a Bavarian regiment during the last war.

The famous Hindenburg line of 1914 runs three miles to the West.

AMERICANS HELD BY NAZIS AFTER FRENCH SERVICE

NEW YORK, June 5—Reported "missing" last week, Lawrence Jump, Dartmouth graduate serving with the American volunteer ambulance corps in Europe's war, is a German prisoner, it was revealed today.

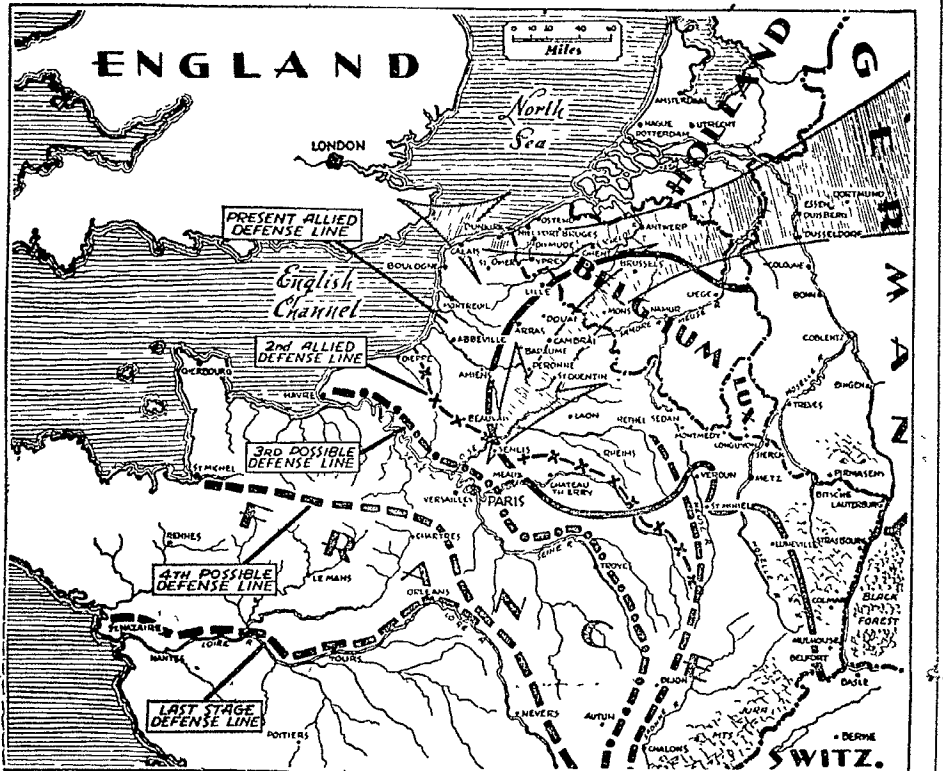

A telegram received at the New York headquarters of the corps from Mrs. Hurd C. Willett, of Lincoln, Mass., a relative of Jump, said: "State department reports Lawrence Jump is prisoner near Stuttgart. They are arranging his release."

A German short-wave radio broadcast several days ago disclosed that four other members of the American ambulance unit had also been taken prisoner. Jump is a native of Oakland, Cal.

SCHOOL OPENS SEPT. 4 FOR 36-WEEK PERIOD

School dismisses one day, and the Circleville Board of Education meets the next to start planning the "bad news" for youngsters almost before they have started to map their summer activities. Circleville's board met Tuesday evening and set September 9 as the day for opening of school next fall. The term will run for 36 weeks.

Hitler Hits at France's Defense Lines

WITH his drive for channel ports successful, Adolf Hitler today struck hard at France in the Somme District. To meet the threat France has prepared successive defensive lines as indicated on this map. The present line (below shaded, Nazi-controlled area) is along the Somme and the Aisne Rivers.

European Bulletins

LONDON—More than 70 members of the British Fascist Union were arrested in yesterday's round-up of "fifth column" suspects, authorities disclosed today. They included four prospective Parliamentary candidates.

NEW YORK—Canadian troops have been sent to the British West Indies to relieve British regulars there, the official British radio said today in a broadcast intercepted in New York by the Columbia Broadcasting System.

NEW YORK—Le Bourget airport near Paris was seriously damaged during the German air raid on Monday, according to a Berlin radio broadcast picked up in New York today by NBC. The announcer said most of the large hangars were destroyed by direct hits.

PRINCETON, N. J.—Declaring the French army and the British navy "constitute a first line of defense for the Western Hemisphere," a petition signed by 1400 Princeton residents, including 350 students and 100 faculty members, today demanded immediate assistance in the form of military supplies for the Allies.

ROME—A report circulated in Rome today that Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano, Minister of Popular Culture Alessandro Pavolini and Ettore Muti, secretary-general of the Fascist party, have been recalled to active service in the Italian air force.

BUSHEL OF COAL COSTS MAN 73 DAYS IN JAIL

After serving 73 days in Pickaway County jail for stealing a bushel of coal, William Underwood, 52, Derby, was released Wednesday. He was arrested by the constable at Derby March 13, and was fined $200 and sentenced to 30 days in jail. He was released after he had agreed to pay the remaining $15 of his fine.

SHEETS IN DRIVE ON GAMBLING IN OHIO RIVER CITY

PORTSMOUTH, June 5—Gambling devices were scarce in Portsmouth today as city police, under Chief Harry Sheets, carried out a blanket order of City Manager Ross E. Windom for immediate termination of all forms of gambling.

The "cleanup" order was made after City Council asked City Manager Windom for a weekly report on the gambling situation in the city. The council charged it had received numerous complaints about open gambling.

286 MILLIONS IN GOLD SHIPPED TO U. S. BY ALLIES

NEW YORK, June 5—The greatest single daily influx of gold in United States history, reliably estimated at $286,720,000 in value, was safe from possible Nazi confiscation today within the heavily guarded underground vaults of the New York Federal Reserve Bank.

The huge shipment of gold represented reserves from the central vaults of the Bank of France and the Bank of England and possibly some Belgium and Dutch metal shipped across the channel at the German invasion of the low countries. It had been rushed from London and Paris to Canada, presumably by warship or under heavy convoy, and from there transferred by rail to New York.

A long line of express trucks brought the gold to the bank in an all-day procession yesterday. It was loaded 80 cases to the truck, according to observers. Since each case is worth $56,000, each truck carried $4,480,000, and since 64 trucks were counted, it was calculated that at least $286,720,000 had been transferred.

Bank officials declined to discuss the gold influx which presumably was ordered to clear the bank vaults of France and England of the precious metal lest it possibly fall into German hands.

F. D., IF CHOSEN AGAIN, MAY QUIT AT END OF WAR

WASHINGTON, June 5—High New Dealers are informing Democratic leaders of congress today that President Roosevelt will accept a third term nomination and, if reelected, resign the presidency as soon as the second World War ends.

This report, widely circulated on Capitol Hill, explains the sudden Democratic activity over the second-place nomination. If true, it means that the next Democratic vice presidential nominee is to become president of the United States in event that Mr. Roosevelt is reelected and the war ends in less than four years.

The Roosevelt "president-for-less-than-a-year" report has provoked conflicting rumors over his choice of a running-mate. Last week, there was a brief flurry of talk over a harmony ticket of Roosevelt and Garner, with the President pictured as ready to accept Vice President John N. Garner for another term.

The Garner rumor, however, died by the wayside when the New Dealers brought out the report that Mr. Roosevelt would not serve out a third term if reelected. The New Dealers immediately said Garner was too old for the post and that the President desired a much younger man and a new dealer as his running-mate.

ONE RAILROADER KILLED, OTHERS HURT IN CRASH

JOHNSONBURG, Pa., June 5—One crew member was killed and two others were reported injured today in the wreck of an early Pittsburgh-Buffalo passenger flyer and a northbound freight train on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad two miles east of Johnsonburg.

The dead man was listed by B. & O. officials as James McFarland, 65, of Salamanca, N. Y., the passenger engineer.

John Rice, DuBois, Pa., fireman on the flyer, and an unidentified baggagehandler were reported injured. None of the passengers was hurt, B. & O. spokesmen said.

F. D. CONTINUES EFFORT TO KEEP ITALY FROM WAR

Exchange Of Messages With Il Duce Admitted By Secretary Early

WASHINGTON, June 5—President Roosevelt is presumably continuing his effort today to deter Premier Mussolini from plunging Italy into Europe's war.

Presidential Secretary Stephen T. Early said that Mr. Roosevelt is engaging in an exchange of messages with Il Duce in an effort to prevent extension of the theatre of war to the Mediterranean basin.

Referring to recurrent newspaper dispatches, which continued today, stating that Mussolini has told the President that his terms for remaining out of the war include important territorial concessions—chiefly from France—Early would only say:

"Not a single true-and-accurate report on the President's correspondence with Mussolini has yet come from Rome."

Suggestions Clear

100,000 JOIN IN VAN WERT'S BIG PEONY FESTIVAL

VAN WERT, June 5—An estimated 100,000 persons converged on Van Wert today for the ninth annual Peony Festival, scheduled to be held without blossoms of the honored flower.

Once before, in 1938, Mother Nature failed to cooperate and have the peonies in bloom for the annual event. That year, they bloomed about a week ahead of schedule.

This year, however, things were just in reverse. Considerable rainy and cold weather during May have delayed the blooms, which are not expected to reach their peak until next Sunday or later. Only a few of the earlier varieties were reported in bloom today.

The festival was to be climaxed with a giant parade and the crowning of "Queen Jubilee IX," pretty Jeanne Lewis, 17-year-old York Township school girl. The approximately 60 bands and 50 highly-decorated floats were to repeat the parade tonight, followed by a giant fireworks display.

F. D. R.'S YOUNGEST SON FATHER OF BABY BOY

BOSTON, June 5 — Ann Clark Roosevelt, wife of John Roosevelt, youngest son of the President, today gave birth to a baby boy at Boston Lying In hospital.

The baby weighed 7 pounds, 9 ounces.

Both mother and child are doing well, according to the attending physician, Dr. Charles G. Shedd. Name of the baby will be Haven Roosevelt.

Mrs. Roosevelt's mother is the former Mrs. F. Haven Clark, now Mrs. Lloyd J. Wiltsie.

The Roosevelts live in Winchester, where young Roosevelt is assistant manager of a Boston department store branch.

Their marriage June 18, 1938, was the biggest social event of the season, with President and Mrs. Roosevelt attending the nuptials at Nahant, where the Clark family maintained an estate.

Artillery Fire Precedes Massed Infantry Attack Accompanied By Waves Of German Dive-Bombers; Crack Units In Defense

QUICK VICTORY GOAL OF FUEHRER

Most Activity Being Directed Between Sea And Laon-Soissons Road, 55 Miles Northeast Of Objective Of Nazis

BERLIN, June 5—A violent air battle between German and Swiss planes over French territory was disclosed in an official German announcement today.

LONDON, June 5—Plans for the mass evacuation of British children to unspecified points in the Dominions were revealed today as Nazi Germany launched a large-scale offensive against Paris, Le Havre and Cherbourg.

PARIS, June 5—Hurling up a curtain of artillery fire, massed infantry attacks and waves of dive-bombers, Germany unleashed her "grand offensive" against Paris today along a front estimated at between 90 and 100 miles wide.

In a gigantic effort for a quick victory, Chancellor Hitler launched his legions into a new Western Front struggle that may decide the fate of Paris and climax the first stage of Europe's war.

The new German drive, begun with stunning suddenness at 4 a. m., struck southward between the French coast and the Laon-Soissons road.

A French military spokesman declared the attack began at 4 a. m. (10 p. m. Tuesday Circleville time) with a tremendous artillery barrage, followed by dive bombing and massed infantry assaults.

"The great battle has started again," the spokesman said.

"It extends from the sea to the Soissons-Laon road. It is too early yet to obtain details or even an impression of what is going on."

"When I telephoned the high command at 9:30 a. m. they had no precise information as yet."

"In contrast to the tactics used at the Meuse, the attacks seem to be based on artillery, dive bombing and infantry."

"The enemy does not appear to have used many armored elements as yet."

"The infantry attacks were started in the middle of the Somme River and in the region east of the Oise River. At least, that is where they were pointed at the start of the fighting."

Confidence Expressed

"I hope to have some details to give you this evening. We can only await the fate of the battle. We have confidence in our soldiers and leaders for the outcome of this battle."

First news of the new assault in Paris was contained in the official communique of the French high command.

"All information received from the front since early morning shows that a new battle has begun," the war bulletin stated. Violent enemy efforts up to the present are being directed between the sea and the Laon-Soissons road."

Soissons is about 55 miles northeast of Paris. Laon is about 20 miles northeast of Soissons.

French authorities made no secret of their opinion that the new attack is the German "supreme bid" for victory. They indicated that the fate of Paris and the issue of the first phase of the European war hangs in the balance. Observers believed the outcome is a question of "touch and go."

Advices received in Paris indicated the Germans were "shooting the works" in the new attack, unleashing warplanes, artillery barrages, mechanized troops and massed infantry regiments against the Allied defenders.

At the same time, it was revealed that the German air force had carried out another attack against the great French port of Havre during the night, perhaps in a new attempt to hamper communications between France and Britain.

Houses Still Burning

Houses there were still burning this morning as a result of bombs dropped by waves of German planes which circled over the Havre area for an hour last night.

Further details of the situation at Havre were withheld for the present.

Meanwhile, it was revealed that the death toll resulting from the German air raid on Paris Monday mounted to 254 with 652 injured. These figures were revealed by Premier Paul Reynaud, who said new victims had been found in the ruins and that many of the injured had died. Search for still more victims was continuing.

At the same time, French authorities indicated the evacuation (Continued on Page Two)

Artillery Fire Precedes Massed Infantry Attack Accompanied By Waves Of German Dive-Bombers; Crack Units In Defense

QUICK VICTORY GOAL OF FUEHRER

Most Activity Being Directed Between Sea And Laon-Soissons Road, 55 Miles Northeast Of Objective Of Nazis

BERLIN, June 5—A violent air battle between German and Swiss planes over French territory was disclosed in an official German announcement today.

LONDON, June 5—Plans for the mass evacuation of British children to unspecified points in the Dominions were revealed today as Nazi Germany launched a large-scale offensive against Paris, Le Havre and Cherbourg.

PARIS, June 5—Hurling up a curtain of artillery fire, massed infantry attacks and waves of dive-bombers, Germany unleashed her "grand offensive" against Paris today along a front estimated at between 90 and 100 miles wide.

In a gigantic effort for a quick victory, Chancellor Hitler launched his legions into a new Western Front struggle that may decide the fate of Paris and climax the first stage of Europe's war.

The new German drive, begun with stunning suddenness at 4 a. m., struck southward between the French coast and the Laon-Soissons road.

A French military spokesman declared the attack began at 4 a. m. (10 p. m. Tuesday Circleville time) with a tremendous artillery barrage, followed by dive bombing and massed infantry assaults.

"The great battle has started again," the spokesman said.

"It extends from the sea to the Soissons-Laon road. It is too early yet to obtain details or even an impression of what is going on."

"When I telephoned the high command at 9:30 a. m. they had no precise information as yet."

"In contrast to the tactics used at the Meuse, the attacks seem to be based on artillery, dive bombing and infantry."

"The enemy does not appear to have used many armored elements as yet."

"The infantry attacks were started in the middle of the Somme River and in the region east of the Oise River. At least, that is where they were pointed at the start of the fighting."

Confidence Expressed

First news of the new assault in Paris was contained in the official communique of the French high command.

"All information received from the front since early morning shows that a new battle has begun," the war bulletin stated. "Violent enemy efforts up to the present are being directed between the sea and the Laon-Soissons road."

Soissons is about 55 miles northeast of Paris. Laon is about 20 miles northeast of Soissons.

French authorities made no secret of their opinion that the new attack is the German "supreme bid" for victory. They indicated that the fate of Paris and the issue of the first phase of the European war hangs in the balance. Observers believed the outcome is a question of "touch and go."

Advices received in Paris indicated the Germans were "shooting the works" in the new attack, unleashing warplanes, artillery barrages, mechanized troops and massed infantry regiments against the Allied defenders.

At the same time, it was revealed that the German air force had carried out another attack against the great French port of Havre during the night, perhaps in a new attempt to hamper communications between France and Britain.

Houses Still Burning

Houses there were still burning this morning as a result of bombs dropped by waves of German planes which circled over the Havre area for an hour last night.

Further details of the situation at Havre were withheld for the present.

Meanwhile, it was revealed that the death toll resulting from the German air raid on Paris Monday mounted to 254 with 652 injured. These figures were revealed by Premier Paul Reynaud, who said new victims had been found in the ruins and that many of the injured had died. Search for still more victims was continuing.

HOUSE TO BOOST TAX BILL, ALTER RATE ON INCOME

Many In 'Middle-Class' To Be Added To List Paying Share To Government

200 MILLIONS NECESSARY

Lowering Of Exemptions Of Single Persons May Be Initial Step

WASHINGTON, June 5—The House ways and means committee today voted to boost the Doughton $656,000,000 tax bill by at least $200,000,000 and to broaden the income tax base to bring in new taxpayers and increase rates on so-called middle-class income.

A tax sub-committee headed by Rep. Cooper (D) Tenn., was instructed to draft a new tax bill for the full committee.

"We will consider broadening the tax base," said Chairman Doughton (D) N. C. "The sub-committee is instructed to prepare amendments to raise at least $200,000,000 more and a larger amount if it is necessary to adjust the burden equitably. If we get taxes out of the middle brackets, it may be necessary to make other adjustments."

The tentative committee plan includes proposed lowering of the exemption for single persons from $1,000 to $800 and for married persons from $2,500 to $1,800. It also includes an increase in taxes on middle groups incomes, especially those between $5,000 and $60,000.

May Boost Excess Profits

Committee leaders were considering boosting the excess profits tax or proposing a new so-called "war profits tax" to recapture most of the profits made under the new defense program.

A further increase on income taxes of the wealthy also was studied, but tax experts reported that rates now are so high that little additional revenue can be obtained from this source.

Set back by the administration's new billion dollar defense plan—announced two days after a $656,000,000 tax bill was agreed on—the ways and means committee voted to raise the debt limit from $45,000,000,000 to $49,000,000,000 and levy additional taxes.

"We are thinking of an $850,- (Continued on Page Two)

By Pierre J. Huss
WITH THE GERMAN ARMIES IN BELGIUM, June 4—(Delayed in transmission)—Captured soldiers of the British Expeditionary Force and the French army started their weary march to Berlin today. They poured out of the old World War battlefields by the countless thousands. Before me as I watched this parade of defeated men lay

Ypres, scarred and ravaged as in the last war. The famed Menin Gate still stands, but it bears evidence of the furious fighting which raged for some days in this locality. The Ypres cemetery escaped unscathed, but the bridge approaching the town was blown up. Strangely, there is little evidence of fighting at Ghent except where fortified positions

outside the city stood as a fruitless bulwark to the German advance. The debris of war is plentiful there. The city of Bruges remained untouched. It was from Belgian army headquarters there that King Leopold surrendered. Ostend was damaged by bombing of military objectives. The military prisoners who began their march today are congesting roads and temporary prison camps in the areas of Lille, Arras and Cambrai to Ypres, Dixmude, Nieuport and Ostend.

Picture Depressing
Throughout all these regions there is the same depressing picture of unshaven, dusty, disarmed, gaunt-eyed and confused men, shuffling along the roads with their packs, under the eyes of German guards. They are Hitler's prisoners. Many of them don't seem to care what happens next.

These are the men who were harried by the blitzkrieg which pierced 200 miles from the French and Belgian borders into northwestern France, Flanders and the coastal regions. They were attacked hour after hour by terrifying Stukas, Heinkels and Messerschmitts and shoved further and further back along the broad concrete highways from Sedan to Maubeuge.

I have driven over the principal roads during the last few days. Every mile of the way is strewn with British and French arms, wreckage, abandoned supplies, munitions, guns, ruined batteries and dead animals.

The Germans broke the Maginot Line extension in front of Maubeuge. I passed by scores of shattered pill-boxes which obviously were unable to withstand German bombs and shells, as well as innumerable useless anti-tank traps, steel-barriers and barbed wire positions.

In the small town of Beaumont, a number of the famous French 30-ton tanks were surprised by Stuka dive-bombers. Eight of them were left standing as mere scrap-iron in a narrow street.

Minor Damage in Cambrai

The war hit Maubeuge, where resistance was attempted, and then jumped like a mid-western tornado without hurting the landscape to Cambrai, where heavy fighting took place outside the town. There was only minor damage in the interior.

The main street of Arras leading to the railway station took a beating, but otherwise the city was untouched. Armistices was hit in a few places, but is generally intact. A village just outside contains a small house with a concrete plaque asserting that Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler was quartered there as a lance corporal in a Bavarian regiment during the last war.

AMERICANS HELD BY NAZIS AFTER FRENCH SERVICE

NEW YORK, June 5—Reported "missing" last week, Lawrence Jump, Dartmouth graduate serving with the American volunteer ambulance corps in Europe's war, is a German prisoner, it was revealed today.

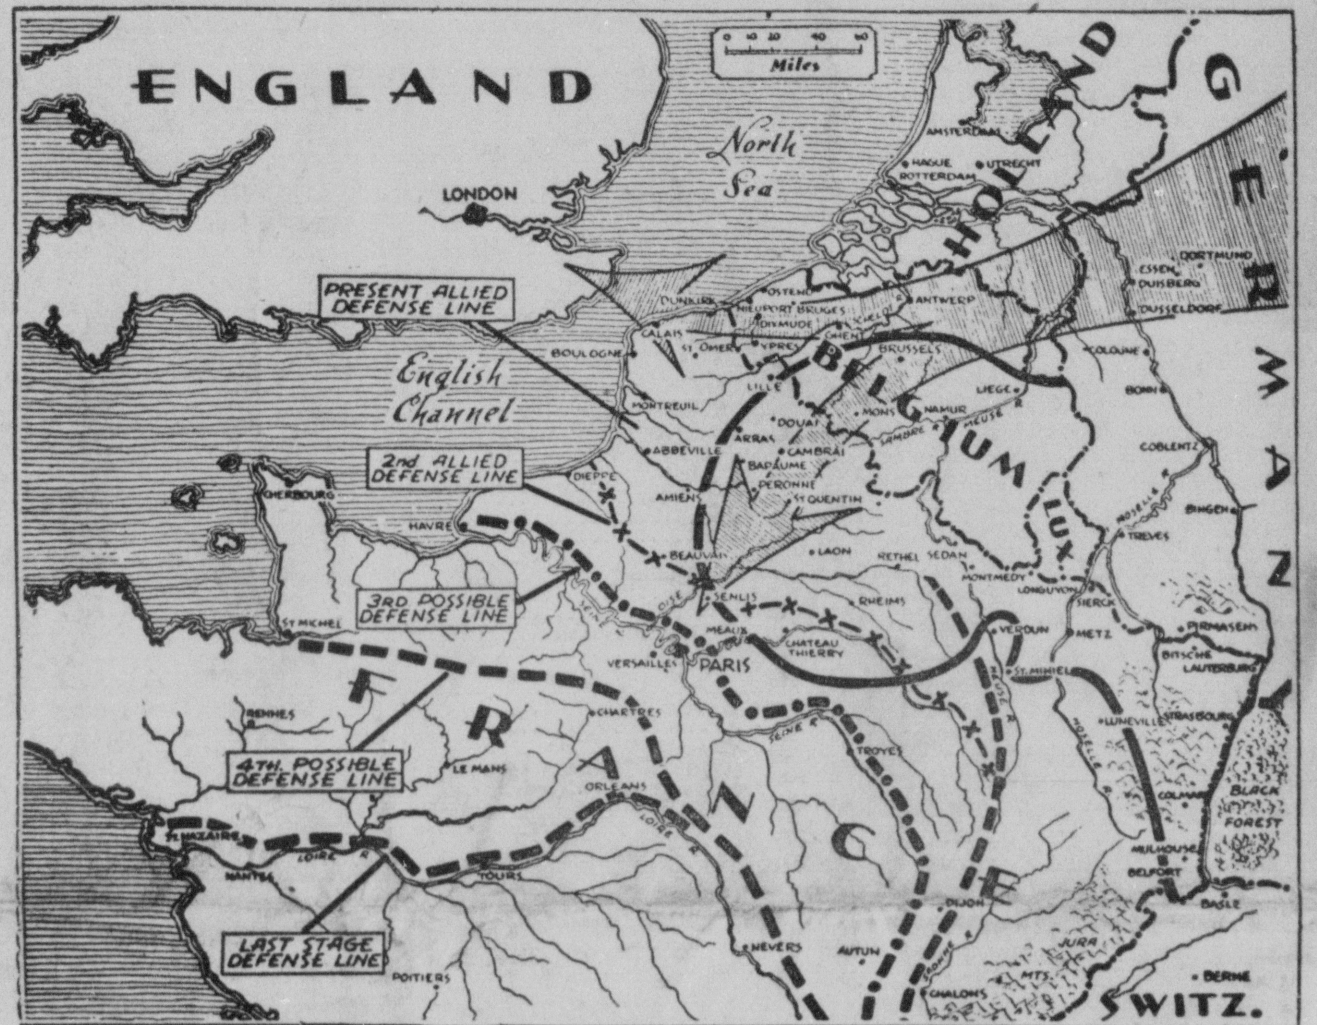

A telegram received at the New York headquarters of the corps from Mrs. Hurd C. Willett, of Lincoln, Mass., a relative of Jump, said: "State department reports Lawrence Jump is prisoner near Stuttgart. They are arranging his release."

A German short-wave radio broadcast several days ago disclosed that four other members of the American ambulance unit had also been taken prisoner. Jump is a native of Oakland, Cal.

SHEETS IN DRIVE F. D., IF CHOSEN ON GAMBLING IN AGAIN, MAY QUIT OHIO RIVER CITY AT END OF WAR

PORTSMOUTH, June 5—Gambling devices were scarce in Portsmouth today as city police, under Chief Harry Sheets, carried out a blanket order of City Manager Ross E. Windom for immediate termination of all forms of gambling.

The "cleanup" order was made after City Council asked City Manager Windom for a weekly report on the gambling situation in the city. The council charged it had received numerous complaints about open gambling.

286 MILLIONS IN GOLD SHIPPED TO U. S. BY ALLIES

NEW YORK, June 5—The greatest single daily influx of gold in United States history, reliably estimated at $286,720,000 in value, was safe from possible Nazi confiscation today within the heavily guarded underground vaults of the New York Federal Reserve Bank.

The huge shipment of gold represented reserves from the central vaults of the Bank of France and the Bank of England and possibly some Belgium and Dutch metal shipped across the channel at the German invasion of the low countries. It had been rushed from London and Paris to Canada, presumably by warship or under heavy convoy, and from there transferred by rail to New York.

A long line of express trucks brought the gold to the bank in an all-day procession yesterday. It was loaded 80 cases to the truck, according to observers. Since each case is worth $56,000, each truck carried $4,480,000, and since 64 trucks were counted, it was calculated that at least $286,720,000 had been transferred.

Bank officials declined to discuss the gold influx which presumably was ordered to clear the bank vaults of France and England of the precious metal lest it possibly fall into German hands.

ONE RAILROADER KILLED, OTHERS HURT IN CRASH

JOHNSONBURG, Pa., June 5—One crew member was killed and two others were reported injured today in the wreck of an early Pittsburgh-Buffalo passenger flyer and a northbound freight train on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad two miles east of Johnsonburg.

The dead man was listed by B. & O. officials as James McFarland, 65, of Salamanca, N. Y., the passenger engineer. John Rice, Dubois, Pa., fireman on the flyer, and an unidentified baggage man were reported injured.

None of the passengers was hurt, B. & O. spokesmen said.

F. D. CONTINUES EFFORT TO KEEP ITALY FROM WAR

Exchange Of Messages With Il Duce Admitted By Secretary Early

WASHINGTON, June 5—President Roosevelt is presumably continuing his effort today to deter Premier Mussolini from plunging Italy into Europe's war.

Presidential Secretary Stephen T. Early said that Mr. Roosevelt is engaging in an exchange of messages with Il Duce in an effort to prevent extension of the theatre of war to the Mediterranean basin.

Referring to recurrent newspaper dispatches, which continued today, stating that Mussolini has told the President that his terms for remaining out of the war include important territorial concessions—chiefly from France—Early would only say: "Not a single true and accurate report on the President's correspondence with Mussolini has yet come from Rome."

Suggestions Clear

100,000 JOIN IN VAN WERT'S BIG PEONY FESTIVAL

VAN WERT, June 5—An estimated 100,000 persons converged on Van Wert today for the ninth annual Peony Festival, scheduled to be held without blossoms of the honored flower.

Once before, in 1938, Mother Nature failed to cooperate and have the peonies in bloom for the annual event. That year, they bloomed about a week ahead of schedule.

This year, however, things were just in reverse. Considerable rainy and cold weather during May have delayed the blooms, which are not expected to reach their peak until next Sunday or later. Only a few of the earlier varieties were reported in bloom today.

The festival was to be climaxed with a giant parade and the crowning of "Queen Jubilee IX," pretty Jeanne Lewis, 17-year-old York Township school girl. The approximately 60 bands and 50 highly-decorated floats were to repeat the parade tonight, followed by a giant fireworks display.

"I hope to have some details to give you this evening. We can only await the fate of the battle. We have confidence in our soldiers and leaders for the outcome of this battle."

First news of the new assault in Paris was contained in the official communique of the French high command.

"All information received from the front since early morning shows that a new battle has begun," the war bulletin stated. Violent enemy efforts up to the present are being directed between the sea and the Laon-Soissons road.

Soissons is about 55 miles northeast of Paris. Laon is about 20 miles northeast of Soissons.

French authorities made no secret of their opinion that the new attack is the German "supreme bid" for victory. They indicated that the fate of Paris and the issue of the first phase of the European war hangs in the balance. Observers believed the outcome is a question of "touch and go."

Advices received in Paris indicated the Germans were "shooting the works" in the new attack, unleashing warplanes, artillery barrages, mechanized troops and massed infantry regiments against the Allied defenders.

French and British troops from the Flanders trap had been completely, with the last man of the rear guard removed from the flaming French port, according to a French admiralty announcement.

From Berlin:

German troops have resumed their offensive in France, German authorities revealed today, but declined to give out any indication of where the fighting is occurring.

Disclosure in Berlin of the new fighting followed a proclamation by Chancellor Hitler which stated that a new battle had begun "for the freedom of the future German nation" and ordered the nation to hoist its flags and pay homage to the German army.

At the same time, authentic sources stated that the Reich had made no new peace overtures. They said, however, that it was evident, from their speeches, that British Prime Minister Winston Churchill and French Premier Paul Reynaud had rejected any idea of peace.

These circles stated that no concrete proposals lay behind the German high command announcement yesterday, lashing at the Allied leaders for desiring continuance of the war.

Meanwhile, it was officially admitted that Munich, Frankfurt and the Ruhr had been attacked by Allied planes, but it was emphasized that no essential damage had been caused.

Authorities said the number of casualties was not yet known. Details will not be published for military reasons.

Meanwhile the high command and the German foreign office are working out a definition of what Germany will consider "defended" and "undefended" cities.

Three Generals Taken

Another official announcement stated that three generals were among the 40,000 Allied prisoners captured at Dunkerque and that the booty taken by the Germans as yet cannot be estimated.

The port of Dunkerque was destroyed, it was asserted, and 200 large Allied ships were driven ashore there as a result of air attacks. Numerous small vessels also were driven ashore, it was stated.

Hitler issued an order of the day for the German defense forces, eulogizing the "exploits, gallantry and endurance" of German soldiers in defeating the Dutch, Belgians, French and British in the low countries and Flanders and in finishing the "greatest battle in history."

"Within a few weeks," he said, "you forced two countries to capitulate, annihilated France's best and defeated the British Expeditionary Force and chased it from the continent."

"The plutocratic rulers of England and France who conspired to frustrate by all means the flourishing of a new and better world desire continuation of the war."

"Our soldiers on the Western Front, beginning today, again are participating in new battles."

"Countless fresh divisions which will see the foe for the first time and will defeat him will join you."

Annihilation Pledged

"The battle for the freedom of our nation, for existence of non-existence now and for the future, will thereby be continued until the annihilation is accomplished of those enemy rulers of London and Paris who still believe they see in war a better means for realization of their plans of hostility toward nations."

DIZ DEAN READY TO LEARN AGAIN HOW TO PITCH

CHICAGO, June 5—Dizzy Dean, who contends he became a great Major League pitcher just by picking up a ball and throwing it, today set out to discover whether he now can be "taught" to pitch in the minors.

Dean, reduced to the status of a second rate hurler by a mysterious arm ailment which developed soon after he was purchased by the Chicago Cubs from the St. Louis Cardinals three years ago for $185,000 and three players, has been released by the Cubs under option to the Tulsa club in the Texas League.

In Tulsa, where he will work under the $10,000 salary paid him by the Cubs, Dean will be guided by Dutch Reuther, former big league southpaw and now a Cubs' scout. Reuther, according to Cubs' officials, will work with Dean in the latter's attempt to develop a new sidearm style of pitching in place of the over-arm speedball motion which brought him fame.

Recently, Dean's arm was examined by experts at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, and the pitcher was told he would have to find a new style of pitching if he ever hoped to become an effective moundman again.

"Down there in the Oklahoma heat," said Dean before his departure with Mrs. Dean by auto today, "I'll be trying out the new side-arm throwing under ideal conditions. I'm sure I can work something out and come back strong."

"I am sure that Mussolini has been addressed by the President of this country in sentiments he should not have misunderstood."

That Mr. Roosevelt has been in continuing touch with Mussolini since U. S. Ambassador to Rome William Phillips delivered a presidential peace note to the premier some weeks ago has been inferentially affirmed right along by White House declarations that the President is overlooking no possibilities in his protracted peace efforts.

Rumors and report regarding the territorial demands Mussolini is supposed to have made as his price for peace range from acquisition of various African colonies to cession of the French Alps, which would make Italy a dominant military menace to France.

YOUNGSTER PLAYING WITH MATCHES CAUSES FLAMES

A boy playing with matches started a fire at 9:30 Wednesday morning in the coal house of Harold G. Cook, 143 Town Street.

The first jumped from the coal house to a garage which stood beside it and to a barn which stood across the alley. The coal shed was almost destroyed, but neither the garage nor the barn was badly damaged, firemen reported.

Fire Chief Talmer Wise estimated the damage at $50.

These ambulances will be supplemented by large quantities of surgical dressings, medicines and hospital clothing, it was reported.

STATE ADVISES B. I. S. CHANGES

Survey by Experts Cites Need for Revision At School for Boys

COLUMBUS, June 5—Changes in practically all phases of the operation of the Boys' Industrial School at Lancaster were recommended today to State Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood.

The recommendations came with the completion of a survey conducted under the supervision of Ohio State University professors who were asked by Sherwood to undertake the study in an endeavor to correct various conditions at the Industrial School.

The survey committee headed by Dr. T. C. Holy assisted by Dr. Gerald B. Stahly, both of Ohio State's Bureau of Education Research, recommended that the commitment of youths to the Industrial School be centralized in the Bureau of Juvenile Research in Columbus, another of the welfare department's agencies.

It was suggested that Ohio juvenile courts be instructed to place delinquent boys with the Bureau of Juvenile Research for an indefinite period in lieu of sending them to the Lancaster institution or the Mansfield Reformatory.

Under present laws, the commitment age to the Industrial School is between 10 and 18 years. The committee pointed out last year, 1.8 percent of the School's entire population was in the 10 and 11 year age groups.

Further recommendations by the committee in the field of commitments, placements and supervision included:

1—Older boys, particularly those having been previously enrolled at the Industrial School, be studied with a view to enrollment at the Ohio State Reformatory rather than a return to the Lancaster School.

2—That consideration be given to the establishment of strategically located small, cottage-plan institutions for the treatment and study of boys under 15 years of age.

3—That the Bureau of Juvenile Research re-establish field clinics, as an aid to the juvenile courts, not having access to such clinics, in the diagnosis and treatment of juvenile delinquents.

4—That resources, other than the school, such as foster care, be utilized wherever possible for the treatment of delinquent boys of superior intelligence.

5—That no minimum or maximum period of enrollment be set, but the period of enrollment at the institution be adjusted to the needs of the particular boy, whether it be for a short time or for a number of years.

000,000 to $900,000,000 tax bill, but may possibly raise $1,000,000,000," said Chairman Doughton (D) N. J.

G. G. P. Aid Denied

Republican members of the committee refused to support the new tax program. They demanded assurance that ordinary expenditures of the government will be cut, asked a guarantee that no part of the emergency fund will be used for regular expenses, and charged that they have been insufficiently informed of administrative plans.

Senate Majority Leader Barkley approved the house proposal to boost the tax bill and expressed belief that the senate would acquiesce promptly, perhaps permitting congress to adjourn by June 22.

Hitler in Drive To Take Paris

French and British troops from the Flanders trap had been completed, with the last men of the rear guard removed from the flaming French port, according to a French admiralty announcement.

From Berlin:

German troops have resumed their offensive in France, German authorities revealed today, but declined to give out any indication of where the fighting is occurring.

Disclosure in Berlin of the new fighting followed a proclamation by Chancellor Hitler which stated that a new battle had begun "for the freedom of the future German nation" and ordered the nation to hoist its flags and pay homage to the German army.

At the same time, authentic sources stated that the Reich had made no new peace overtures. They said, however, that it was evident, from their speeches, that British Prime Minister Winston Churchill and French Premier Paul Reynaud had rejected any idea of peace.

These circles stated that no concrete proposals lay behind the German high command announcement yesterday, lashing at the Allied leaders for desiring continuance of the war.

Meanwhile, it was officially admitted that Munich, Frankfurt and the Ruhr had been attacked by Allied planes, but it was emphasized that no essential damage had been caused.

Authorities said the number of casualties was not yet known. Details will not be published for military reasons.

Meanwhile the high command and the German foreign office are working out a definition of what Germany will consider "defended" and "undefended" cities.

Three Generals Taken

Another official announcement stated that three generals were among the 40,000 Allied prisoners captured at Dunkerque and that the booty taken by the Germans as yet cannot be estimated.

The port of Dunkerque was destroyed, it was asserted, and 200 large Allied ships were driven ashore there as a result of air attacks. Numerous small vessels also were driven ashore, it was stated.

Hitler issued an order of the day for the German defense forces, eulogizing the "exploits, gallantry and endurance" of German soldiers in defeating the Dutch, Belgians, French and British in the low countries and Flanders and in finishing the "greatest battle in history."

"Within a few weeks," he said, "you forced two countries to capitulate, annihilated France's best and defeated the British Expeditionary Force and chased it from the continent."

"The plutocratic rulers of England and France who conspired to frustrate by all means the flourishing of a new and better world deserve continuation of the war."

"Their wishes will be fulfilled. Our soldiers on the Western Front, beginning today, again are participating in new battles."

"Countless fresh divisions which will see the foe for the first time and will defeat him will join you."

Annihilation Planned

"The battle for the freedom of our nation, for existence of non-existence now and for the future, will thereby be continued until the annihilation is accomplished of those enemy rulers of London and Paris who still believe they see in war a better means for realization of their plans of hostility toward nations."

"Our victory will teach them better."

From London:

Germany's main attack against France has been launched with incredible speed and has Paris, Havre and Cherbourg as its main objectives, according to first reports reaching London today.

Authorities cautioned, however, that later information must be awaited before this strategic picture of the fighting can be fully confirmed.

British advisers said the fighting extends from the Abbeville area on the French coast to the region of Fismes.

In the sector south of St. Quentin, it was stated, the Germans are striking great blows in "blitzkrieg" style, combining dive bombing attacks with tank thrusts.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: A military spokesman in Paris indicated the Germans had not yet brought more than "negligible" armored elements into action.)

But near Fismes, British information indicated, the Germans were hurling forward great masses of infantry, supported by tremendous artillery barrages.

Since the Germans are known to have been concentrating artillery in this sector for some days, this push would resemble the 1918 style, though here again, officials said, later reports from the front should be awaited.

British quarters said it was also difficult as yet to decide whether the Germans have launched a two-pronged offensive—one from Abbeville and another from Fismes, or whether they have attacked along the whole front between these sectors.

But it seems certain the Germans are delivering blows in "one-two-three" style in an endeavor to find a weak spot for a break-through.

Reports to London strongly suggest that French anti-tank guns are being used with deadly effect and that last month's reports that these guns could not pierce German tank armor are definitely not true.

Therefore, it was conjectured, both the French anti-tank units and their famous 75-millimeter guns may have been gathered in sufficient force to blunt the German armored spearhead before any serious damage has been inflicted on the French flank, always provided the French are willing to strike with their total power.

MRS. FLORA WELCH DIES; RITES TO BE THURSDAY

Mrs. Flora Catherine Welch of Ashville died Tuesday at her home after a long illness. Mrs. Welch lived her entire life in Pickaway County.

She is survived by her daughter, Mrs. George R. Gardner, and one grandson, George Gardner, Jr., of Ashville.

CITY EMPLOYEES OF COLUMBUS TO AWAIT CHECKS

COLUMBUS, June 5—Columbus municipal employees will have to wait until July for their pay for this month because of the city's financial condition, Auditor James A. Rhodes predicted today. Ordinarily city employees receive their pay checks twice a month.

Rhodes hinted that two weeks may be required to collect sufficient money to meet the May 15-31 payrolls of the police, fire, and three other divisions. Overdue vouchers total $86,000. He estimated that $100,000 would be collected this month leaving an estimated $14,000 to be applied on the June payroll.

DIZ DEAN READY TO LEARN AGAIN HOW TO PITCH

CHICAGO, June 5—Dizzy Dean, who contends he became a great Major League pitcher just by picking up a ball and throwing it, today set out to discover whether he now can be "taught" to pitch in the minors.

Dean, reduced to the status of a second rate hurler by a mysterious arm ailment which developed soon after he was purchased by the Chicago Cubs from the St. Louis Cardinals three years ago for $185,000 and three players, has been released by the Cubs under option to the Tulsa club in the Texas League.

In Tulsa, where he will work under the $10,000 salary paid him by the Cubs, Dean will be guided by Dutch Reuther, former big league southpaw and now a Cubs' scout. Reuther, according to Cubs' officials, will work with Dean in the latter's attempt to develop a new sidearm style of pitching in place of the over-arm speedball motion which brought him fame.

Recently, Dean's arm was examined by experts at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, and the pitcher was told he would have to find a new style of pitching if he ever hoped to become an effective moundman again.

"Down there in the Oklahoma heat," said Dean before his departure with Mrs. Dean by auto today, "I'll be trying out the new side-arm throwing under ideal conditions. I'm sure I can work something out and come back strong."

I have traveled hundreds of miles along highways and byways on the French and Belgian fronts and have yet to see a smashed German column. German officers insist that the French and British air forces were caught off guard and with insufficiently modernized material to combat the Nazis.

A captured British sergeant who had a chance to see the German columns at close range said to me:

"I have never seen anything like it. I never saw so much motorized equipment."

WPA TO SLASH COUNTY QUOTA BY 80 PERSONS

Reduction of 3,800 Workers Before July 1 Necessary As Funds Dwindle

Clients Without Dependents First To Feel Ax From District Office

A reduction of 3,800 in the number of workers in the Central Ohio WPA district, from the June 1 total of approximately 16,800 to a tentative quota figure of 13,000 by July 1, already is under way, J. L. Kelly, district manager, announced Wednesday at Columbus.

This cut is greater than was at first believed necessary to enable the 23-county district to stay within its portion of Ohio's dwindling share of the 1939-40 relief act appropriation. In the whole state, forces are being reduced from 133,000 to 111,000.

In Pickaway County the quota reduction will be from 470 to 390.

The reduction takes into account the normal monthly return to private employment of around 1,200 workers, Mr. Kelly said. Currently being laid off are persons without dependents, and those workers with income other than their WPA wage will be affected next. As the regulations provide, supervisory and administrative personnel must be reduced proportionately.

Both construction and non-construction workers are affected by the layoffs.

WAUSEON, June 5—A verdict of accidental strangulation was returned today in the death of 20-month-old Ellen Louise Buntz, daughter of Robert Owen Buntz, high school instructor at Chester-ville, Morrow County.

Coroner H. M. Warner said Ellen, who was visiting at the Wauseon home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Buntz, had been put to sleep on a studio couch and fastened with a zipper sheet. During her sleep, the child had rolled off the couch, the zipper sheet holding her head causing strangulation, Warner said.

Spring of 1884 Recalled; It Brought First Electric Light to Circleville

By Austin Showman

There were lots of visitors in Circleville that spring of 1884. They had all heard talk about Circleville's electric lights, but they were coming to see for themselves. Why, not even Cleveland, Cincinnati, Toledo, Columbus, in fact no other town in Ohio, had them. Those who came from out of town hurried to get to Circleville before the moon came up, because then they would get a chance to see the lights while they were still turned on, and they had been told that the lights would be turned out as soon as the moon came up.

TARLTON CHURCH PLANS PROGRAM ON ANNIVERSARY

The Methodist Church will celebrate the 100th anniversary of its church building on June 16. The speakers will be the former pastor the Rev. A. L. Vandergriff, and Rev. J. Ira Jones. The program for the celebration has not yet been completed. A basket dinner will be served at noon, each family being requested to take its own table service.

Mrs. Louise Brown and son Ronnie of Lancaster visited Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. Leeman Pritchard.

The Young People's class of the Lutheran Church met in the social room of the church on Wednesday night, with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Strous entertaining.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Shakes returned to their home Sunday in Missouri after spending a few days with her grandfather, M. S. Judy.

John Weaver, who fell from the roof while repairing a down spouting on his home last Thursday causing a concussion of the brain, is getting along as well as can be expected.

Miss Addie Kreider of Orient is visiting with her Uncle Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Mowery.

GOODMAN RITES TO BE HELD AT HOME FRIDAY

Funeral services for Claude B. Goodman, 52, who ended his life Tuesday with a shotgun, will be conducted Friday at 3 p. m. at the home, 183 West Mound Street, with burial to be in Hiller-Ludwig Cemetery by the Albaugh Co.

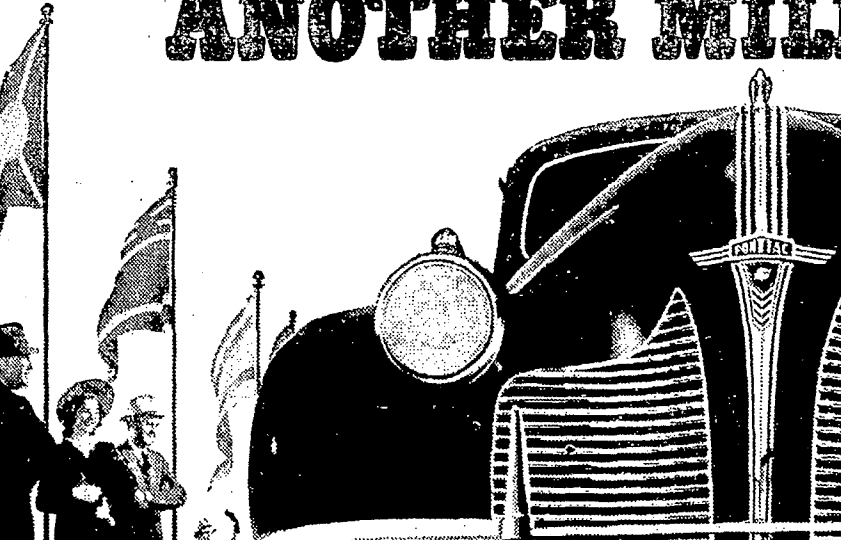

Mr. Goodman had been in ill health, his physician said, authorities attributing his act to that fact. He had been employed as custodian of the Walnut Street School. He was born in 1883, a son of James B. and Mattie Kuhn Goodman. He married Nell Rihl in Chillicothe January 26, 1913, and is survived by his widow; two children, Larry B., near Circleville, and Mrs. Lucille M. Short, St. Joseph, Michigan; a brother, George, of Columbus and a sister Mrs. Gertrude Strawser of Adelphi.

V. F. W. AUXILIARY PUTS ON NEW SAFETY EFFORT

In conjunction with the National program of veterans and auxiliaries, the local unit of the Veterans of Foreign Wars opened a campaign Wednesday for greater safety on the streets and highways of Circleville and vicinity.

The immediate procedure of the campaign will be through the distribution of artistic safety seals, each picturing some form of danger, together with appropriate educational suggestions as to how such hazards may be prevented. There are thirty different kinds of the seals and they are designed for use on mail and packages.

Spring of 1884 Recalled; It Brought First Electric Light to Circleville

By Austin Showman

There were lots of visitors in Circleville that spring of 1884. They had all heard talk about Circleville's electric lights, but they were coming to see for themselves. Why, not even Cleveland, Cincinnati, Toledo, Columbus, in fact no other town in Ohio, had them. Those who came from out of town hurried to get to Circleville before the moon came up, because then they would get a chance to see the lights while they were still turned on, and they had been told that the lights would be turned out as soon as the moon came up.

H. H. Hoffman and Henry Worthington from Cincinnati organized the company which had installed the lights. They had contracts to install lights in Middletown and Piqua too, but Circleville streets were thronging with admiring spectators before lights had been installed in the other two Ohio towns.

City council passed the ordinance granting the newly organized company, named the Circleville Edison Illuminating Company, permission to "erect and maintain posts and wire for establishing electric lights" on November 21, 1883. Two days later Circleville people read a copy of the ordinance in the Circleville "Democrat and Watchman."

The light plant was established on East Main Street with Bernard Kathe as president of the company. William M. Todd, father of I. P. Todd, who lives on

Route 23 north of Circleville, was the plant's first superintendent. The company was not highly successful however, and its $50,000 experiment was about to collapse when it sold out to Dr. Howard Jones in 1892. Dr. Jones

Auxiliary officials believe that extensive use of this impressive safety material will result in greater safety consciousness on the motoring public and pedestrians.

During 1939 more than 37,000 persons were killed and an approximate 100,000 more were injured, many of whom were made cripples for life. During the first five months of 1940 more than 15,000 have met death in similar traffic accidents. The auxiliary hopes to do its bit toward helping reduce such appalling loss of life and human suffering.

Citizens of Circleville will be requested to buy as many of the seals as they can use. Funds derived from the sale of the seals will be used in the welfare activities of the auxiliary. Whole-hearted cooperation will be appreciated by the entire unit.

E. W. Stebleton Placed On Honor Roll Again

NEW YORK, June 5—Elmer W. Stebleton, manager of the Kroger Grocery and Baking Co. store at 139 W. Main Street, Circleville, has won a place on the 1940 Roll of Honor of Community Builders compiled annually by "Chain Store Age," the national business magazine.

BABY DIES OF STRANGULATION IN WAUSEON, O.

WAUSEON, June 5—A verdict of accidental strangulation was returned today in the death of 20-month-old Ellen Louise Buntz, daughter of Robert Owen Buntz, high school instructor at Chester-ville, Morrow County.

Coroner H. M. Warner said Ellen, who was visiting at the Wauseon home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Buntz, had been put to sleep on a studio couch and fastened with a zipper sheet. During her sleep, the child had rolled off the couch, the zipper sheet holding her head causing strangulation, Warner said.

PHEASANTS AVAILABLE

WASHINGTON C. H., June 5—About 800 young pheasants will be released in Fayette County this season, Robert McAlphin, state game management agent for Fayette County, has announced. He is now taking orders for caring for 3-week old pheasants. When the pheasants are grown they may be released on the property of the person who raises them, the game management agent said.

announced today. Mr. Stebleton was awarded a similar honor last year.

The Roll of Honor of Community Builders is designed to give recognition to those chain store managers who performed outstanding services for the communities in which they were stationed during 1939.

T. E. Wilson, publisher of The Herald, nominated Mr. Stebleton. He was subsequently endorsed by Ray E. Rowland, President of the Circleville Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Stebleton was President of the Circleville Retail Merchants Association last year, and on the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce. He served as chairman of the Manufacturing and Industrial Relations committee.

He was chairman of the Christmas decorations committee and provided a Santa Claus for the festivities.

Mr. Stebleton drew especial commendation for his interest in welfare work. As chairman of a Kiwanis Club committee, he conducted a camp last summer for twenty poor boys, and also staged a Christmas program for another forty underprivileged. Another Kiwanis activity of 1939 was his activity in the Police and Firemen's Ball.

He played a leading role in the drive to buy and equip a city playground.

Active in Boy Scout circles, he served as chairman of the Scout Father and Son banquet, and now heads a committee charged with devising a program for the annual meeting here of Boy Scout officials. He is also a member of the Masonic Lodge.

"Chain Store Age" has sent a Scroll of Honor to Mr. Stebleton in recognition of his community services.

Spring of 1884 Recalled; It Brought First Electric Light to Circleville

By Austin Showman

There were lots of visitors in Circleville that spring of 1884. They had all heard talk about Circleville's electric lights, but they were coming to see for themselves. Why, not even Cleveland, Cincinnati, Toledo, Columbus, in fact no other town in Ohio, had them. Those who came from out of town hurried to get to Circleville before the moon came up, because then they would get a chance to see the lights while they were still turned on, and they had been told that the lights would be turned out as soon as the moon came up.

H. H. Hoffman and Henry Worthington from Cincinnati organized the company which installed the lights. They had contracts to install lights in Middletown and Piqua too, but Circleville streets were thronging with admiring spectators before lights had been installed in the other two Ohio towns.

City council passed the ordinance granting the newly organized company, named the Circleville Edison Illuminating Company, permission to "erect and maintain posts and wire for establishing electric lights" on November 21, 1883. Two days later Circleville people read a copy of the ordinance in the Circleville "Democrat and Watchman."

The light plant was established on East Main Street with Bernard Kathe as president of the company. William M. Todd, father of I. P. Todd, who lives on

Route 23 north of Circleville, was the plant's first superintendent. The company was not highly successful however, and its $50,000 experiment was about to collapse when it sold out to Dr. Howard Jones in 1892. Dr. Jones

GOODMAN RITES TO BE HELD AT HOME FRIDAY

Funeral services for Claude B. Goodman, 52, who ended his life Tuesday with a shotgun, will be conducted Friday at 3 p. m. at the home, 163 West Mount Street, with burial to be in Hitler-Ludwig Cemetery by the Albaugh Co.

Mr. Goodman had been in ill health, his physician said, authorities attributing his act to that fact. He had been employed as custodian of the Walnut Street School.

He was born in 1888, a son of James B. and Mattie Kuhn Goodman. He married Nell Ruhl in Chillicothe January 26, 1913, and is survived by his widow; two children, Larry B., near Circleville, and Mrs. Lucille M. Short, St. Joseph, Michigan; a brother, George, of Columbus and a sister, Mrs. Gertrude Strawser of Adelphi.

Mr. Goodman was a member of Trinity Lutheran Brotherhood.

V. F. W. AUXILIARY PUTS ON NEW SAFETY EFFORT

In conjunction with the National program of veterans and auxiliaries, the local unit of the Veterans of Foreign Wars opened a campaign Wednesday for greater safety on the streets and highways of Circleville and vicinity.

The immediate procedure of the campaign will be through the distribution of artistic safety seals, each picturing some form of danger, together with appropriate educational suggestions as to how such hazards may be prevented. There are thirty different kinds of the seals and they are designed for use on mail and packages.

LET'S BE CALM

MAYBE we Americans are an excitable lot. Anyway, William L. White, returning after several months spent among people who had reason to be excited, but were not, finds fault with us on this score. To a fellow coming from the war front, we seem hysterical. He says:

"America can only think about the present military movements from the Buck Rogers angle. We seem to be completely preoccupied with fifth columns, nerve gas, parachute troops and other military gadgets."

Thanks, Bill, and excuse it please. We'll try to buck up and calm down.

PARK VANDALISM

NEW YORK CITY, like many cities throughout the United States, has greatly increased its park and playground facilities in the last few years. That the need was great and that the public appreciates its opportunities have been proved by the millions who regularly use the new recreation areas.

Most of these millions are proud of the parks and show it by treating them well. In every city, however, vandals have made the problem of maintaining recreation facilities a difficult one. A few hoodlums can smash windows, tear branches from trees, wreck play equipment and scatter unsightly rubbish, that will jeopardize the pleasure and safety of decent and well-behaved thousands.

The Park Association of New York recommends locally that the number of plainclothesmen patrolling the parks be increased and that educational work be strengthened to combat the evil. Prompt discovery and punishment of vandals, plus a well-defined public opinion in favor of park protection, should cut the destruction to the minimum.

TRAIN-TAXI HOOK-UP

A COMBINED train and taxicab service will be offered to travelers in 25 cities in the East and Middle West beginning June 1. In all but two it will be available only between 9 a. m. and 3 p. m.; in Chicago and Pittsburgh it will apply to any continuous four-hour run.

Coupons entitling rail passengers to the special service will be issued by railroad ticket agents without cost. The leading cab companies have contracted to provide cabs with chauffeurs for six hours at a flat rate of five dollars.

Quite a bit of sight-seeing, visiting, or business can be taken care of in six hours. The convenience and satisfaction of having the same cab and driver for such a period in a strange city are obvious. It should be a good thing for the railroads and cab men, too.

And now, on top of all England's other troubles, John and Elaine Barrymore say they're going over there.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles F. Stewart

SO MUCH gloomy talk has been going the rounds in Washington recently concerning Uncle Sam's unpreparedness for international trouble that it sounded good the other day to hear Governor William D. Leahy of Puerto Rico report that the Caribbean can be made invulnerable inside two months.

Leahy, a retired admiral, knows what he's talking about.

And it's a foregone conclusion that no foreign power can manage much of a blitzkrieg in the Caribbean Sea in as short a time as two months.

Planes, the admiral admits, might get past our anti-aircraft defense, but he says it wouldn't be worth their while unless quickly supported by strong landing parties, which couldn't run an American blockade, he asserts.

In short, the admiral is very well pleased with the Caribbean military, naval and aviation conditions, but he pronounces Puerto Rican economics deplorable, with unemployment rampant.

There's talk of the admiral, by the way, for a new defensive post.

ARMY OR NAVY PORTFOLIO
President Roosevelt is said to have him in mind for the army or navy portfolio, if only Secretary of War Woodring or Naval Secretary Edison would resign, creating a cabinet vacancy.

The trouble is, they both have been so slow about doing it.

The White House is said to have been tempting Secretary Woodring with offers of the United States legation in Canada, as successor to James Cromwell lately resigned. And Woodring is reported to think favorably of the appointment, not having been a howling success as secretary of war, whereas he's socially admirably qualified to shine as our diplomatic representative in Ottawa.

But apparently he simply can't quite make up his mind to quit, as the executive mansion so ardently wishes he would, yet hesitates to put the skirts under him.

Edison, on his part, was nominated governor of New Jersey, and the assumption was that he'd resign his portfolio and campaign for the elective position. But somehow he evidently doesn't care to drop out of the cabinet, either.

The navy department has become tremendously important recently, and the secretary presumably doesn't fancy the notion of quitting the national limelight for a mere governorship.

The upshot is that the president has hanging fire two tentative cabinet resignations that he'd be extremely glad to have the acceptance of.

HIS OWN MEDICINE

The situation is one in which the White House tenant has been getting some of his own medicine. As we all know, he has kept all other Democratic presidential aspirants on the anxious seat, wondering, "Is he going to run again, or isn't he?" Their own plans depended on his decision, and he wouldn't reveal it.

This time he has a couple of cabinet members on his hands, and wants to know, "Are they going to resign or aren't they?" And they won't tell him—haven't made up their own minds, in all probability—just as he probably hadn't made up his own mind when folk quizzed him on the third term issue.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

ATTACK ON FRANCE FAVORED

WASHINGTON—As far as U. S. military observers can make out, the German General Staff does not want Hitler to move into England next. They think the loss of life will be too great. Instead they want to finish the campaign in France, driving east of Paris to hook up with the Italians. Then both armies would advance on the rest of France.

However, Hitler has ignored his general staff before and has usually proved he was right. Also the American observers may not have the real information.

There is no question, of course, that German casualties in Belgium were tremendous. Also there is no question that they would be tremendous in England.

However, U. S. military strategists figure that England definitely can be taken. It will cost Hitler between 35 and 50 percent of his attacking troops, but if the price is paid, the British Isles, uninhabited since 1066, probably can be overrun by a conquering Hitler.

Perhaps the key to whether Hitler wants to pay his price is a remark he made about a year ago, that if the war lasted four years Germany would lose 4,000,000 men; so he would prefer to lose 3,000,000 in the first three months—and win the war.

NAZIS IN SOUTH AMERICA

The problem of protecting the Monroe Doctrine has undergone intensive nights of study of late around the State, War and Navy Departments. Nobody is exactly predicting that Hitler will invade South America this year, but nobody expected him to invade Norway either. And the British, one year ago, didn't expect to be invaded at all, and did not very well prepare for it.

So U. S. strategists, not knowing what Hitler, in the full flush of victory, might do, are endeavoring to be prepared.

On the maps of South America hung in government offices these days are two danger spots. One is Brazil, the other Uruguay. Other spots are bad, but these two have the largest number of Nazi sympathizers and fifth column plotters.

Uruguay is simply honeycombed with Nazi agents. There are also strong German colonies in southern Brazil, and even in Buenos Aires. In Argentina, the older army officers are strongly pro-German, having been trained by a German officer. In Brazil, the younger army officers are pro-Nazi.

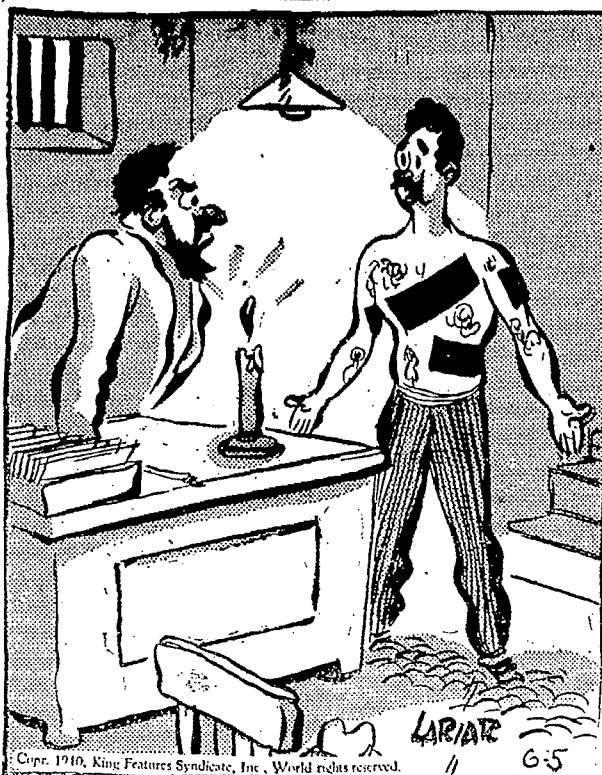

Particularly worrisome is the fate of these countries with Italy in the war. There are at least 2,000,000 Italians in Argentina—or about one-fifth of the population. Also there are large Italian colonies in Uruguay and Brazil.

Chief undercover strategy of these racial groups is to overthrow the present governments in South America, in favor of puppet governments friendly to the Nazi-Fascist cause. Then these puppet governments could renounce the Monroe Doctrine and invite Hitler to the Western Hemisphere.

NOTE—New aviation aids, enlarging of airports, training of pilots, and even the cooperation of the U. S. Fleet in using Brazilian harbors are now under discussion to bolster the present pro-Allied governments of South America.

When Kaiser Wilhelm was winning 25 years ago, he gave the credit to "our good old German God," but Hitler doesn't divide honors with anybody.

Stamp Honors First Surgeon to Give Ether

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE POST OFFICE Department has just issued a stamp in honor of Dr. Crawford W. Long of Georgia, who gave ether for the first time for anesthesia during a surgical operation. It seems too bad that they did not wait for the centenary anniversary, which will be in 1942, but from another point of view it is all right because this is an anniversary year for ether.

It was first synthesized in 1840 by Valerius Cordis, a young pharmacist of Nuremberg in Germany. Cordis published what can be considered as the first pharmacopoeia,

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

or list of drug and medicinal preparations, with a description of their method of preparation and properties.

The Long stamp has roused an old controversy. I went down to Jefferson, Georgia, a year or two ago, purposely to see and photograph this historic spot in medical annals. It is a sweet, sleepy old Southern town. In the public square (it is really a circle) is the monument put up to Long by the Georgia State Medical Society in 1910. The building on the site where Dr. Long had his office and where the ether was given on that memorable occasion is marked by two plaques, one a marble slab which has so weathered that the words on it are undecipherable. Another bronze plaque was placed there by the Works Progress Administration in 1936.

Tells Stamp Fight

An enthusiastic gentleman who told me he "lived, and ate and slept the life of Crawford Long" courtesously showed me the house where Long lived as a bachelor physician and the room he is supposed to have occupied. This gentleman recounted to me the efforts he was making to induce the government to issue the stamp, and he even foreshadowed the return of the controversy.

"Do you realize, sub," he demanded, "that up North they claim that some Yankee dentist discovered ether?"

First Operation

Dr. Long had a patient, young Mr. Venable, who had two excrescences on his neck that he very much wanted to have removed. I think we should feel a brotherly sympathy for Mr. Venable. He was vain and he wanted the excrescences removed mostly for the purpose of enhancing his beauty. But he was deathly afraid of the pain that their removal would entail. And you must admit he had a good deal of courage to comply when Dr. Long proposed giving him a sleeping dose of the ether in order to remove them. But he did and the operation was performed in Dr. Long's office on March 30, 1842, and Mr. Venable paid a bill of 25 cents for the ether and $2 for the operation.

Separate Discovery

Quite independently, however, Dr. W. T. G. Morton, a dentist in Boston, discovered the anaesthetic properties of ether and demonstrated its effectiveness in the surgical amphitheatre of the Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, October 16, 1846.

Two of the greatest surgeons living, Dr. J. C. Warren and Dr. H. J. Bigelow, were present; Dr. Warren performed the operation. Dr. Bigelow reported the circumstances in the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal and the whole world of surgery knew of it. The great Robert Liston in London exclaimed "Hurrah! Rejoice! In six months no operation will be performed without this preparation. Rejoice!"

So the credit seemed to be snatched from Long, the obscure country general practitioner. But when later, Morton tried to get a grant from Congress, Long had by that time published his experiences and the honor was restored to him, and has been his ever since.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE

BECAUSE SHE liked the way he said things as much as what he said, Gayle had slipped into the habit of reading Cholly Farrington's gossip column every morning in The Chronicle-Post. Several mornings recently he had chatted about The Oaks and the goings-on there. Most of what he said had been complimentary.

This morning she was downstairs at seven o'clock, and Graham brought her the paper on a tray with a tall glass of pineapple juice. The juice, slightly chilled, had a sprig of mint in it, mint from the Merrifield garden on the east side.

The yellow juice and the green mint were beautiful, and Gayle lolled back in a deep porch chair to enjoy the luxury here. She sipped the juice, and nibbled at the mint to enhance its aroma, and she gazed out at the glory of the early morning. She had come to like these breakfast hours more and more. Sometimes she ate and visited here with old Mr. Merrifield, sometimes she was alone.

"I'm not entitled to all this," she told herself today, as she had often done before. "Why should I be suddenly snatched from a cottage, struggling all the time for a living, and placed in a mansion? I wasn't destined for this. It's grand, but it doesn't belong to me."

Still, she knew better than to walk out deliberately on such a "break" in life. She had come here to get a job and certainly it was no fault of hers if the job turned out to be a strange, whimsical one in surroundings of dignity and wealth. In these modern times, one takes whatever good job one can find, so long as it is respectable.

"It may not last long," she admitted to her mother on visits home. "But it certainly is in my favor while I'm there. Mr. Merrifield is ever so generous. The 'expense money' he gives amounts to a salary, really. I've heard even if I never get the—$10,000."

"Oh, dear!" The mother had been distressed about that, and was still so every time Gayle mentioned it. "I don't like your having to court a rich young man, or make him—whatever it is, I don't like having your heart tampered with, Gayle, honey. Not for any pay."

Gayle had laughed that off. "Oh, gee, that's just all in fun, really, mother. I'm nothing but a sort of hostess there, and a big sister to Jeremy. I'm quietly coaching him along. If he should happen to imagine himself in love with me some time and propose to me, that would be grand. I would simply be sweet to him and maybe direct his interest. You see, Jeremy's emotions are back in the high school stage. He may fall in love two or three times before he really wants to get married, mother."

Mrs. Dixon had sighed. "You talk like a mature woman, child." "Goodness, mother, I am almost 23!"

Alone on the broad porch at The Oaks this morning, though, Gayle realized that her own heart was not immune to emotional stimuli. After all, she hadn't slept well last night. She had, somehow, done a lot of mixed-up thinking in bed, illogical but insistent imaginings. She had gone to bed at 10, and gotten up at 11 to hunt a bite to eat and then wander around the house aimlessly in her silk dressing robe and dainty mules—the blue set she had gotten for Christmas. Bill had come in at midnight, and after they had talked a bit she went back to bed. Bill had said that he saw Lola Montesa but he hadn't explained anything about why. This morning she was still vaguely disturbed by it. Her pineapple juice was almost done when she opened The Chronicle-Post to read it.

Cholly Farrington's column was on page two. Short punch sentences and paragraphs, always entertaining. She hoped he might cheer her up this morning. The second topic caught her attention at once.

"Lolled last evening in La Casa Mexicana, the new chili-pot-and-pepper emporium on Fifteenth street. Seems you have to wear a mantilla or a serape, or at least know what these items are, in order to get in there, but yours truly slipped in concealed in a tamale shuck. Typical tipica music was tintinabulating; a gay thing in swirly and castanets and little else held the diners' interest—except for me. In a corner I discovered that Montesa person from Merrifield's Oaks."

"She's the dark beauty—who, among others, is being dangled under grandson's eyes. But grandson wasn't with her. Bailey, the boy actor, floated in her wake. Bailey knows a good thing when he sees it. They said in college that he was a smart lad. He's proving it now. We can't yet report what the next play at the Merrifield Little Theater is to be, if any, but we'll bet it's some sort of fiesta where an olive skinned beauty can take the lead."

"Which reminds us to worry about the Dixon lass—remember her in 'Maid to Measure,' or couldn't you get seats? Now, there's a blond dream! She doesn't know it yet herself, but she's due for a tryout in the movies. Sid Obermann, who loves nothing better than to star a brand new girl in a feature-length rather than build her up by degrees, liked the photograph of beautiful Dixon immensely. He's due in town this month. He'll wait Bailey of the irresistible smile to perform with her, but if there's a lump of Mexico involved now—"

The gossip column disturbed Gayle anew. She put down her glass and reread the passage, and was suddenly furious at the possibilities it suggested. A movie tryout? That should have been exciting news; but, no, she was not even remotely interested in the movies. Anyway, that wasn't the part of Farrington's column which interested her now.

Bill hadn't said anything about taking Lola to a night club! Bill had even hinted strongly that Lola was the person who stole the 'Tways' watch—and yet Bill had taken Lola out to dance and have a good time.

"He's never taken—he's never even asked me for a date!" Gayle whispered to herself. Her lips were drawn tight so that they lost much of their natural color. But all at once she relaxed, slumped back in her chair and smiled. "I'm being very silly," she mused. "What if he did take Lola out? Why shouldn't he? I don't have any—we both just work here, and everything."

It was a way to restore her good humor, but it didn't settle the vague little raking deep in her heart. In a person of uglier temperament the raking might have swelled out of all proportion; in Gayle it was firmly bottled down, and she smiled and chatted amiably with the butler when he served her waffles and honey and coffee on a little table beside her chair. The waffles had chopped pecans cooked in them, and so were irresistibly good. Ashamed of her appetite, she allowed Graham to bring her two more, and then she went back especially to compliment the cook, Wallace, who already idolized Gayle, now was enslaved even more.

She found Jeremy Tucker in the big reception room next, and she talked briefly with him. Mr. Weems came along, and they chatted. Three of the six "Merrifield girls" (the town had started calling them that) arrived by bus and were walking up the long driveway arm in arm, so Gayle went out to greet them and they talked a while. Then about eight o'clock she happened onto Bill.

"Morning," she said heartily. "Hello. Gee but you look fine today, Gayle. After being up late."

"So do you—after dancing all evening."

"How'd you know I was dancing?"

"I'm psychic. Now hold still a moment!"—she pretended to go into a trance, holding her forehead, eyes closed, looking very tense—"you spoke of theft, but you acted in terms of romance. . . . I see much dancing. Music. String music. Spicy food. Peppery. Colorful decorations and costumes—is it Mexican?—It is. I see you and her at a small table. I see—"

"Sa-a-a-say!" Bill interrupted. "Were you—you said you stayed here all evening, alone?"

"Oh, I did."

"But look—you—look, Gayle, I had to do that. I mean, I wanted to take Lola out and—and sort of—uh—"

"Sure, I know how it is. Sort of dance and talk and eat and have a good time. Everybody likes to do that. Why are you trying to apologize, Bill?"

She spoke ever so cheerfully, but factually, and with just that right little touch of impersonal coldness which a clever girl can show. Bill was instantly miserable. He set in to improve his condition at once.

Gayle, on the other hand, was instantly ashamed of herself. Quite without reasoning about it, she had tactfully reprimanded him. She couldn't say why. There was no earthly reason why Bill shouldn't take Lola Montesa dancing. She, Gayle, had no strings on either of them, surely.

And yet—there had been a sort of growing, if unspoken, understanding between her and Bill. They had been thrown together happily from the first morning Mr. Merrifield hired them, and they had held joint responsibilities since. Hence it just sort of seemed that he and she—

"Look, Gayle, I want to talk to you. I'll go get the car and we'll take a little spin somewhere right now. Okay?"

She wanted to say yes. But she had already set her course and intuition told her not to change it. "Thanks, Bill. Sweet of you. But Jeremy asked me this morning if I would go horseback riding with him. I've got to hurry up and dress for it right now."

LET'S BE CALM

MAYBE we Americans are an excitable
lot. Anyway, William L. White, returning after several months spent among people who had reason to be excited, but were not, finds fault with us on this score.
To a fellow coming from the war front, we seem hysterical. He says:

"America can only think about the present military movements from the Buck Rogers angle. We seem to be completely preoccupied with fifth columns, nerve gas, parachute troops and other military gadgets."

Thanks, Bill, and excuse it please.
We'll try to buck up and calm down.

PARK VANDALISM

NEW YORK CITY, like many cities throughout the United States, has greatly increased its park and playground facilities in the last few years.
That the need was great and that the public appreciates its opportunities have been proved by the millions who regularly use the new recreation areas.

Most of these millions are proud of the parks and show it by treating them well.
In every city, however, vandals have made the problem of maintaining recreation facilities a difficult one. A few hoodlums can smash windows, tear branches from trees, wreck play equipment and scatter unsightly rubbish, that will jeopardize the pleasure and safety of decent and well-behaved thousands.

The Park Association of New York recommends locally that the number of plainclothesmen patrolling the parks be increased and that educational work be strengthened to combat the evil. Prompt discovery and punishment of vandals, plus a well-defined public opinion in favor of park protection, should cut the destruction to the minimum.

TRAIN-TAXI HOOK-UP

A COMBINED train and taxicab service will be offered to travelers in 25 cities in the East and Middle West beginning June 1. In all but two it will be available only between 9 a. m. and 3 p. m.; in Chicago and Pittsburgh it will apply to any continuous four-hour run.

Coupons entitling rail passengers to the special service will be issued by railroad ticket agents without cost. The leading cab companies have contracted to provide cabs with chauffeurs for six hours at a flat rate of five dollars.

Quite a bit of sight-seeing, visiting, or business can be taken care of in six hours.
The convenience and satisfaction of having the same cab and driver for such a period in a strange city are obvious. It should be a good thing for the railroads and cab men, too.

And now, on top of all England's other troubles, John and Elaine Barrymore say they're going over there.

ATTACK ON FRANCE FAVORED

WASHINGTON—As far as U. S. military observers can make out, the German General Staff does not want Hitler to move into England next. They think the loss of life will be too great. Instead they want to finish the campaign in France, driving east of Paris to hook up with the Italians. Then both armies would advance on the rest of France.

However, Hitler has ignored his general staff before and has usually proved he was right. Also the American observers may not have the real information.

There is no question, of course, that German casualties in Belgium were tremendous. Also there is no question that they would be tremendous in England.

However, U. S. military strategists figure that England definitely can be taken. It will cost Hitler between 35 and 50 percent of his attacking troops, but if the price is paid, the British Isles, unin-vaded since 1066, probably can be overrun by a conquering Hitler.

Perhaps the key to whether Hitler wants to pay his price is a remark he made about a year ago, that if the war lasted four years Germany would lose 4,000,000 men; so he would prefer to lose 3,000,000 in the first three months—and win the war.

NAZIS IN SOUTH AMERICA

The problem of protecting the Monroe Doctrine has undergone intensive nights of study of late around the State, War and Navy Departments. Nobody is exactly predicting that Hitler will invade South America this year, but nobody expected him to invade Norway either. And the British, one year ago, didn't expect to be invaded at all, and did not very well prepare for it.

So U. S. strategists, not knowing what Hitler, in the full flush of victory, might do, are endeavoring to be prepared.

On the maps of South America hung in government offices these days are two danger spots. One is Brazil, the other Uruguay. Other spots are bad, but these two have the largest number of Nazi sympathizers and fifth column plotters.

Uruguay is simply honeycombed with Nazi agents. There are also strong German colonies in southern Brazil, and even in Buenos Aires. In Argentina, the older army officers are strongly pro-German, having been trained by a German officer.
In Brazil, the younger army officers are pro-Nazi.

Particularly worrisome is the fate of these countries with Italy in the war.
There are at least 2,000,000 Italians in Argentina—or about one-fifth of the population. Also there are large Italian colonies in Uruguay and Brazil.

Chief undercover strategy of these racial groups is to overthrow the present governments in South America, in favor of puppet governments friendly to the Nazi-Fascist cause. Then these puppet governments could renounce the Monroe Doctrine and invite Hitler to the Western Hemisphere.

NOTE—New aviation aids, enlarging of airports, training of pilots, and even the cooperation of the U. S. Fleet in using Brazilian harbors are now under discussion to bolster the present pro-Allied governments of South America.

When Kaiser Wilhelm was winning 25 years ago, he gave the credit to "our good old German God," but Hitler doesn't divide honors with anybody.

Stamp Honors First Surgeon to Give Ether

By LONG CLENDENING, M. D.

THE POST OFFICE Department has just issued a stamp in honor of Dr. Crawford W. Long of Georgia, who gave ether for the first time for anesthesia during a surgical operation. It seems too bad that they did not wait for the centenary anniversary, which will be in 1942, but from another point of view it is all right because this is an anniversary year for ether.

It was first synthesized in 1840
by Valerius Cordis, a young pharmacist of Nuremberg in Germany.
Cordis published what can be considered as the first pharmacopoeia,

Dr. Clendenning will answer only, and then only through his column.

or list of drug and medicinal preparations, with a description of their method of preparation and properties.

The Long stamp has roused an old controversy. I went down to Jefferson, Georgia, a year or two ago, purposely to see and photograph this historic spot in medical annals. It is a sweet, sleepy old Southern town. In the public "square" (it is really a circle) is the monument put up to Long by the Georgia State Medical Society in 1910. The building on the site where Dr. Long had his office and where the ether was given on that memorable occasion is marked by two plaques, one a marble slab which has so weathered that the words on it are undecipherable.
Another bronze plaque was placed there by the Works Progress Administration in 1936.

Tells Stamp Fight

An enthusiastic gentleman who told me he "lived, ate and slept the life of Crawford Long" courteously showed me the house where Long lived as a bachelor physician and the room he is supposed to have occupied. This gentleman recounted to me the efforts he was then making to induce the government to issue the stamp, and he even foreshadowed the return of the controversy.

"Do you realize, huh," he demanded, "that up to now they claim that some Yankee dentist discovered ether?"

First Operation

Dr. Long had a patient, young
Mr. Venable, who had two excres-cences on his neck that he very much wanted to have removed. I think we should feel a brotherly sympathy for Mr. Venable. He was vain and he wanted the excrescences removed mostly for the purpose of enhancing his beauty.

But he was deathly afraid of the pain that their removal would entail. And you must admit he had a good deal of courage to comply when Dr. Long proposed giving him a sleeping dose of the ether in order to remove them. But he did and the operation was performed in Dr. Long's office on March 30, 1842, and Mr. Venable paid a bill of 25 cents for the ether and $2 for the operation.

Separate Discovery

Quite independently, however,
Dr. W. T. G. Morton, a dentist in Boston, discovered the anesthetic properties of ether and demonstrated its effectiveness in the surgical amphitheatre of the Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, October 16, 1846.

Two of the greatest surgeons living, Dr. J. C. Warren and Dr.
H. J. Bigelow, were present; Dr.
Warren performed the operation.
Dr. Bigelow reported the circumstances in the Boston Medical & Surgical Journal and the whole world of surgery knew of it. The great Robert Liston in London exclaimed "Hurrah! Rejoice! In six months no operation will be performed without this preparation.
Rejoice!"

So the credit seemed to be snatched from Long, the obscure country general practitioner. But when later, Morton tried to get a grant from Congress, Long had by that time published his experiences and the honor was restored to him, and has been his ever since.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendenning has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents.
For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr.
Long Clendenning, in care of this paper.
The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE

BECAUSE SHE liked the way he said things as much as what he said, Gayle had slipped into the habit of reading Cholly Farrington's gossipy column every morning in The Chronicle-Post. Several mornings recently he had chatted about The Oaks and the goings-on there. Most of what he said had been complimentary.

This morning she was downstairs at seven o'clock, and Graham brought her the paper on a tray with a tall glass of pineapple juice.
The juice, slightly chilled, had a sprig of mint in it, mint from the Merrifield garden on the east side.
The yellow juice and the green mint were beautiful, and Gayle lollied back in a deep porch chair to enjoy the luxury here. She sipped the juice, and nibbled at the mint to enhance its aroma, and she gazed out at the glory of the early morning. She had come to like these breakfast hours more and more. Sometimes she ate and visited here with old Mr. Merrifield, sometimes she was alone.

"I'm not entitled to all this," she told herself today, as she had often done before. "Why should I be suddenly snatched from a cottage, struggling all the time for a living, and placed in a mansion? I wasn't destined for this. It's grand, but it doesn't belong to me."

Still, she knew better than to walk out deliberately on such a "break" in life. She had come here to get a job and certainly it was no fault of hers if the job turned out to be a strange, whimsical one in surroundings of dignity and wealth.
In these modern times, one takes whatever good job one can find, so long as it is respectable.

"It may not last long," she admitted to her mother on visits home. "But it certainly is in my favor while I'm there. Mr. Merri-field is ever so generous. The 'expense money' he gives amounts to a salary, really. I'm ahead even if I never get the—the $10,000."

"Oh, dear!" Her mother had been distracted about that, and was still so every time Gayle mentioned it.
"I don't like your having to court
a rich young man, or make him—whatever it is, I don't like having your heart tampered with, Gayle, honey. Not for any pay."

Gayle had laughed that off.
"Oh, gee, that's just all in fun, really, mother. I'm nothing but a sort of hostess there, and a big sister to Jeremy. I'm quietly coaching him along. If he should happen to imagine himself in love with me some time and propose to me, that would be grand. I would simply be sweet to him and maybe direct his interest. You see, Jeremy's emotions are back in the high school stage. He may fall in love two or three times before he really wants to get married, mother."

Mrs. Dixon had sighed. "You talk like a mature woman, child."
"Goodness, mother, I am almost 23!"

Alone on the broad porch at The Oaks this morning, though, Gayle realized that her own heart was not immune to emotional stimuli after all. She hadn't slept well last night. She had, somehow, done a lot of mixed-up thinking in bed. Illogical but insistent imaginings.
She had gone to bed at 10, and gotten up at 11 to hunt a bite to eat and then wander around the house aimlessly in her silk dressing robe and dainty mules—the blue set she had been exposed since the state dam was removed.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuart R. Bollin of Columbus announced the birth of a son. Mrs. Bolin was Miss Ada Rebekah Brown, formerly of Circleville.

The old wooden mills built in the sixties at Waverly by James Emmitt were destroyed by fire.

Today's Horoscope

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

SO MUCH gloomy talk has been going the rounds in Washington recently concerning Uncle Sam's unpreparedness for international trouble that it sounded good the other day to hear Governor William D. Leahy of Puerto Rico report that the Caribbean can be made invulnerable inside two months.

Leahy, a retired admiral, knows what he's talking about.
And it's a foregone conclusion that no foreign power can manage much of a blitzkrieg in the Caribbean Sea in as short a time as two months.

Planes, the admiral admits, might get past our anti-aircraft defense, but he says it wouldn't be worth their while unless quickly supported by strong landing parties, which couldn't run an American blockade, he asserts.

In short, the admiral is very well pleased with the Caribbean military, naval and aviation conditions, but he pronounces Puerto Rican economics deplorable, with unemployment rampant.

There's talk of the admiral, by the way, for a new defensive post.

ARMY OR NAVY PORTFOLIO

President Roosevelt is said to have him in mind for the army or navy portfolio, if only Secretary of War Woodring or Naval Secretary Edison would resign, creating a cabinet vacancy.

The trouble is, they both have been so slow about doing it.

The White House is said to have been tempting Secretary Woodring with offers of the United States legation in Canada, as successor to James Cromwell lately resigned. And Woodring is reported to think favorably of the appointment, not having been a howling success as secretary of war, whereas he's socially admirably qualified to shine as our diplomatic representative in Ottawa. But apparently he simply can't quite make up his mind to quit, as the executive mansion so ardently wishes he would, yet hesitates to put the skids under him.

Edison, on his part, was nominated governor of New Jersey, and the assumption was that he'd resign his portfolio and campaign for the elective position. But somehow he evidently doesn't care to drop out of the cabinet, either.

The navy department has become tremendously important recently, and the secretary presuably doesn't fancy the notion of quitting the national limelight for a mere governorship.

The upshot is that the president has hanging fire two tentative cabinet resignations that he'd be extremely glad to have the acceptance of.

HIS OWN MEDICINE

The situation is one in which the White House tenant has been getting some of his own medicine.
As we all know, he has kept all other Democratic presidential aspirants on the anxious seat, wondering, "Is he going to run again, or isn't he?" Their own plans dependent on his decision, and he wouldn't reveal it.

This time he has a couple of cabinet members on his hands, and wants to know, "Are they going to resign or aren't they?"
And they won't tell him—haven't made up their own minds, in all probability—just as he probably hadn't made up his own mind when folk quizzed him on the third term issue.

ATTACK ON FRANCE FAVORED

WASHINGTON—As far as U. S. military observers can make out, the German General Staff does not want Hitler to move into England next. They think the loss of life will be too great. Instead they want to finish the campaign in France, driving east of Paris to hook up with the Italians. Then both armies would advance on the rest of France.

However, Hitler has ignored his general staff before and has usually proved he was right. Also the American observers may not have the real information.

There is no question, of course, that German casualties in Belgium were tremendous. Also there is no question that they would be tremendous in England.

However, U. S. military strategists figure that England definitely can be taken. It will cost Hitler between 35 and 50 percent of his attacking troops, but if the price is paid, the British Isles, uninhabited since 1066, probably can be overrun by a conquering Hitler.

Perhaps the key to whether Hitler wants to pay his price is a remark he made about a year ago, that if the war lasted four years Germany would lose 4,000,000 men; so he would prefer to lose 3,000,000 in the first three months—and win the war.

NAZIS IN SOUTH AMERICA

The problem of protecting the Monroe Doctrine has undergone intensive nights of study of late around the State, War and Navy Departments. Nobody is exactly predicting that Hitler will invade South America this year, but nobody expected him to invade Norway either. And the British, one year ago, didn't expect to be invaded at all, and did not very well prepare for it.

So U. S. strategists, not knowing what Hitler, in the full flush of victory, might do, are endeavoring to be prepared.

On the maps of South America hung in government offices these days are two danger spots. One is Brazil, the other Uruguay. Other spots are bad, but these two have the largest number of Nazi sympathizers and fifth column plotters.

Uruguay is simply honeycombed with Nazi agents. There are also strong German colonies in southern Brazil, and even in Buenos Aires. In Argentina, the older army officers are strongly pro-German, having been trained by a German officer. In Brazil, the younger army officers are pro-Nazi.

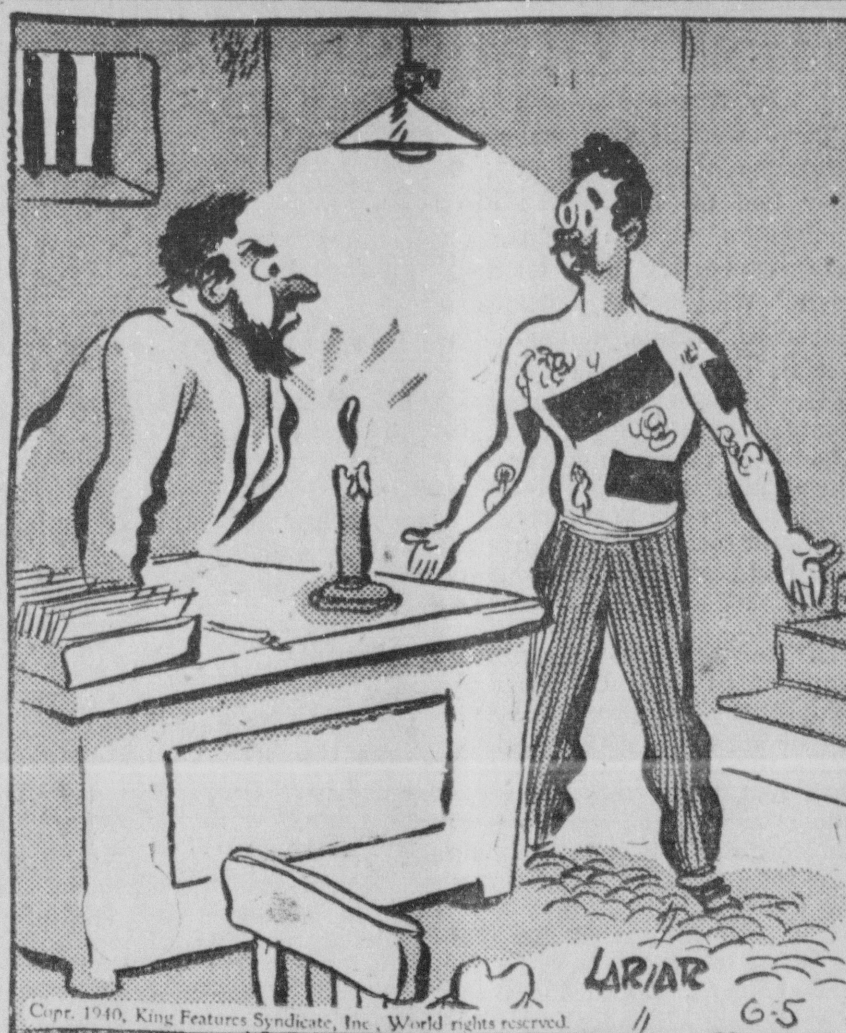

Particularly worrisome is the fate of these countries with Italy in the war. There are at least 2,000,000 Italians in Argentina—or about one-fifth of the population. Also there are large Italian colonies in Uruguay and Brazil.

Chief undercover strategy of these racial groups is to overthrow the present governments in South America, in favor of puppet governments friendly to the Nazi-Fascist cause. Then these puppet governments could renounce the Monroe Doctrine and invite Hitler to the Western Hemisphere.

NOTE—New aviation aids, enlarging of airports, training of pilots, and even the cooperation of the U. S. Fleet in using Brazilian harbors are now under discussion to bolster the present pro-Allied governments of South America.

When Kaiser Wilhelm was winning 25 years ago, he gave the credit to "our good old German God," but Hitler doesn't divide honors with anybody.

Stamp Honors First Surgeon to Give Ether

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE POST OFFICE Department has just issued a stamp in honor of Dr. Crawford W. Long of Georgia, who gave ether for the first time for anesthesia during a surgical operation. It seems too bad that they did not wait for the centenary anniversary, which will be in 1942, but from another point of view it is all right because this is an anniversary year for ether.

It was first synthesized in 1846 by Valerius Cordis, a young pharmacist of Nuremberg in Germany. Cordis published what can be considered as the first pharmacopoeia,

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

or list of drug and medicinal preparations, with a description of their method of preparation and properties.

The Long stamp has roused an old controversy. I went down to Jefferson, Georgia, a year or two ago, purposely to see and photograph this historic spot in medical annals. It is a sweet, sleepy old Southern town. In the public "square" (it is really a circle) is the monument put up to Long by the Georgia State Medical Society in 1910. The building on the site where Dr. Long had his office and where the ether was given on that memorable occasion is marked by two plaques, one a marble slab which has so weathered that the words on it are undecipherable. Another bronze plaque was placed there by the Works Progress Administration in 1936.

Tells Stamp Fight

An enthusiastic gentleman who told me he "lived, ate and slept the life of Crawford Long" courteously showed me the house where Long lived as a bachelor physician and the room he is supposed to have occupied. This gentleman recounted to me the efforts he was then making to induce the government to issue the stamp, and he even foreshadowed the return of the controversy.

"Do you realize, huh," he demanded, "that up North they claim that some Yankee dentist discovered ether?"

First Operation

Dr. Long had a patient, young Mr. Venable, who had two excruciating pains on his neck that he very much wanted to have removed. I think we should feel a brotherly sympathy for Mr. Venable. He was vain and he wanted the excruciating pains removed mostly for the purpose of enhancing his beauty. But he was deathly afraid of the pain that their removal would entail. And you must admit he had a good deal of courage to comply when Dr. Long proposed giving him a sleeping dose of the ether in order to remove them. But he did and the operation was performed in Dr. Long's office on March 30, 1842, and Mr. Venable paid a bill of 25 cents for the ether and $2 for the operation.

Separate Discovery

Quite independently, however, Dr. W. T. G. Morton, a dentist in Boston, discovered the anaesthetic properties of ether and demonstrated its effectiveness in the surgical amphitheater of the Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, October 16, 1846.

Two of the greatest surgeons living, Dr. J. C. Warren and Dr. H. J. Bigelow, were present; Dr. Warren performed the operation. Dr. Bigelow reported the circumstances in the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal and the whole world of surgery knew of it. The great Robert Liston in London exclaimed "Hurrah! Rejoice! In six months no operation will be performed without this preparation. Rejoice!"

So the credit seemed to be snatched from Long, the obscure country general practitioner. But when later, Morton tried to get a grant from Congress, Long had by that time published his experiences and the honor was restored to him, and has been his ever since.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE

BECAUSE SHE liked the way he said things as much as what he said, Gayle had slipped into the habit of reading Cholly Farrington's gossip column every morning in The Chronicle-Post. Several mornings recently he had chatted about The Oaks and the goings-on there. Most of what he said had been complimentary.

This morning she was downstairs at seven o'clock, and Graham brought her the paper on a tray with a tall glass of pineapple juice. The juice, slightly chilled, had a sprig of mint in it, mint from the Merrifield garden on the east side. The yellow juice and the green mint were beautiful, and Gayle lolled back in a deep porch chair to enjoy the luxury here. She sipped the juice, and nibbled at the mint to enhance its aroma, and she gazed out at the glory of the early morning. She had come to like these breakfast hours more and more. Sometimes she ate and visited here with old Mr. Merrifield, sometimes she was alone.

"I'm not entitled to all this," she told herself today, as she had often done before. "Why should I be suddenly snatched from a cottage, struggling all the time for a living, and placed in a mansion? I wasn't destined for this. It's grand, but it doesn't belong to me."

Still, she knew better than to walk out deliberately on such a "break" in life. She had come here to get a job and certainly it was no fault of hers if the job turned out to be a strange, whimsical one in surroundings of dignity and wealth.

In these modern times, one takes whatever good job one can find, so long as it is respectable.

"It may not last long," she admitted to her mother on visits home. "But it certainly is in my favor while I'm here. Mr. Merrifield is ever so generous. The 'expense money' he gives amounts to a salary, really. I'm ahead even if I never get the $10,000."

"Oh, dear!" Her mother had been distressed about that, and was still so every time Gayle mentioned it. "I don't like your having to court a rich young man, or make him—whatever it is, I don't like having your heart tampered with, Gayle, honey. Not for any pay."

Gayle had laughed that off. "Oh, gee, that's just all in fun, really, mother. I'm nothing but a sort of hostess there, and a big sister to Jeremy. I'm quietly coaching him along. If he should happen to imagine himself in love with me some time and propose to me, that would be grand. I would simply be sweet to him and maybe direct his interest. You see, Jeremy's emotions are back in the high school stage. He may fall in love two or three times before he really wants to get married, mother."

Mrs. Dixon had sighed. "You talk like a mature woman, child."

"Goodness, mother, I am almost 23!"

Alone on the broad porch at The Oaks this morning, though, Gayle realized that her own heart was not immune to emotional stimuli, after all. She hadn't slept well last night. She had, somehow, done a lot of mixed-up thinking in bed, illogical but insistent imaginings. She had gone to bed at 10, and gotten up at 11 to hunt a bite to eat, and then wander around the house aimlessly in her silk dressing robe and dainty mules—the blue set she had gotten for Christmas.

Bill had come in at midnight, and after they had talked a bit she went back to bed. Bill had said that he saw Lola Montesa but he hadn't explained anything about why. This morning she was still vaguely disturbed by it. Her pineapple juice was almost done when she opened The Chronicle-Post to read it.

Cholly Farrington's column was on page two. Short punch sentences and paragraphs, always entertaining. She hoped he might cheer her up this morning. The second topic caught her attention at once.

"Lolled last evening in La Casa Mexicana, the new chili-pot-and-pepper emporium on Fiftieth street. Seems you have to wear a mantilla or a serape, or at least know what these items are, in order to get in there, but yours truly slipped in concealed in a tamale shuck. Typical tipica music was tintinabulating; a gay thing in swirled and castanets and little else held the diners' interest—except for me. In a corner I discovered that Montesa person from Merrifield's Oaks."

"She's the dark beauty who, among others, is being dangled under grandson's eyes. But grandson wasn't with her. Bailey, the boy actor, floated in her wake. Bailey knows a good thing when he sees it. They said in college that he was a smart lad. He's proving it now. We can't yet report what the next play at the Merrifield Little Theater is to be, if any, but we'll bet it's some sort of fiesta where an olive skinned beauty can take the lead."

"Which reminds us to worry about the Dixon lass—remember her in 'Maid to Measure', or 'It may not last long'?"

"No, I don't get that. Now, there's a blond dream! She doesn't know it yet herself, but she's due for a tryout in the movies. Sid Obermann, who loves nothing better than to star a brand new girl in a feature-length rather than build her up by degrees, liked the photographs of beautiful Dixon immensely. He's due in town this month. He'll want Bailey of the irresistible smile to perform with her, but if there's a lump of Mexico involved now—"

The gossip column disturbed Gayle anew.

She put down her glass and reread the passage, and was suddenly furious at the possibilities it suggested. A movie tryout? That should have been exciting news; but, no, she was not even remotely interested in the movies. Anyway, that wasn't the part of Farrington's column which interested her now.

Bill hadn't said anything about taking Lola to a night club! Bill had even hinted strongly that Lola was the person who stole the Twys' watch—and yet Bill had taken Lola out to dance and have a good time.

"He's never taken—he's never even asked me for a date!" Gayle whispered to herself. Her lips were drawn tight so that they lost much of their natural color. But all at once she relaxed, slumped back in her chair and smiled. "I'm being very silly," she mused. "What if he did take Lola out? Why shouldn't he? I don't have any—we both just work here, and everything."

It was a way to restore her good humor, but it didn't settle the vague little rankling deep in her heart. In a person of uglier temperament the rankling might have swelled out of all proportion; in Gayle it was firmly bottled down, and she smiled and chatted amiably with the butler when he served her waffles and honey and coffee on a little table beside her chair. The waffles had chopped pecans cooked in them, and so were irresistibly good. Ashamed of her appetite, she allowed Graham to bring her two more, and then she went back especially to compliment the cook, Wallace. Wallace, who already idolized Gayle, now was enslaved even more.

She found Jeremy Tucker in the big reception room next, and she talked briefly with him. Mr. Weems came along, and they chatted. "Three of the six 'Merrifield girls' (the town had started calling them that) arrived by bus and were walking up the long driveway arm in arm, so Gayle went out to greet them and they talked a while. Then about eight o'clock she happened onto Bill.

"Morning," she said heartily. "Hello. Gee but you look fine today, Gayle. After being up late."

"So do you—after dancing all evening?"

"How'd you know I was dancing?"

"I'm psychic. Now hold still a moment!"—she pretended to go into a trance, holding her forehead, eyes closed, looking very tense—"you spoke of theft, but you acted in terms of romance. . . . I see much dancing. Music. String music. Spicy food. Peppery. Colorful decorations and costumes—is it Mexican?—it is. I see you and her at a small table. I see."

"Sa-a-a-say!" Bill interrupted. "Were you—you said you stayed here all evening, alone?"

"Oh, I did."

"But look—you—look, Gayle, I had to do that. I mean, I wanted to take Lola out—and sort of—uh—"

"Sure, I know how it is. Sort of dance and talk and eat and have a good time. Everybody likes to do that. Why are you trying to apologize, Bill?"

She spoke ever so cheerfully, but factually, and with just that right little touch of impersonal coldness which a clever girl can show. Bill was instantly miserable. He set in to improve his condition at once. "Gayle, on the other hand, was instantly ashamed of herself. Quite without reasoning about it, she had tacitly reprimanded him. She couldn't say why. There was no earthly reason why Bill shouldn't take Lola Montesa dancing. She, Gayle, had no strings on either of them, surely."

And yet—there had been a sort of growing, if unspoken, understanding between her and Bill. They had been thrown together happily from the first morning Mr. Merrifield hired them, and they had held joint responsibilities since. Hence it just sort of seemed that he and she—

"Look, Gayle, I want to talk to you. Tell me what the car and we'll take a little spin somewhere right now. Okay?"

She wanted to say yes. But she had already set her course and intuition told her not to change it.

"Thanks, Bill. Sweet of you. But Jeremy asked me this morning if I would go horseback riding with him. I've got to hurry up and dress for it right now."

Essay by Mary K. Pile Wins $5 Papyrus Award

Contest Judging Results Told At Meeting

Miss Mary Katherine Pile, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Pile of Edison Avenue, won the prize in the essay contest of the Circleville Papyrus Club, the winner being announced at the club meeting Tuesday at the home of Miss Margaret Rooney, East Union Street. Miss Pile, a Junior of Circleville High School, received an award of $5 for her essay on the subject, "Ignorance of Coming Events."

The contest sponsored by the Papyrus Club was open to any member of the Junior or Senior Classes of Circleville High School. It closed May 24. Judges in the contest were Miss Jeannette Reichelderfer, North Court Street, Loren Pace, Circleville High School faculty member, and the Rev. L. C. Sherburne of the Papyrus Club. The winning essay will be published in the Thursday issue of The Daily Herald.

Two of the better essays were read at the Tuesday meeting. Mrs. W. W. Robinson read an original poem which had been published recently in the Unity magazine. Robert Watts read an original article, closing the program.

Club members present were Mrs. E. O. Crates, Mrs. Charles Gilmore, Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Milton Kellstadt, Mrs. C. C. Watts, Mrs. Richard Jones, Mrs. W. Emerson Downing, Mrs. Hulise Hays, Miss Rooney, George W. Groom, the Rev. Mr. Sherburne and Robert Watts.

Mrs. Watts will entertain the club in two weeks.

Luther League

The June meeting of the Luther League was held Tuesday in the Trinity Lutheran parish house with George Fischer, vice president, in charge.

It was decided to send two delegates from the league to the summer camp "Greenwood Lake" at Delaware. The camp period opens June 25 and closes June 29. Several members of the league are planning to attend.

The league also voted to sponsor another series of Volley Ball games during the summer months. These will be played on the court back of the parish house.

The Misses Betty Binkley and Lena M. Webb, were appointed to make out the teams and schedules of play. They will be assisted by Paul Walters and Gail Barthelmas. The games will begin the week of June 10.

Gladden Troutman led the group in singing several songs at the close of the business hour.

The delicious lunch was served by the June committee comprised of Ethyl May, Jane Barthelmas, Ethel Hussey, Theodore Koch, John Leist, Gail List, Margaret List, Jean List, Audrey Martin and Clark Martin.

About 65 members and guests were present for the evening.

Annual Senior Class Dance

The Senior Class Dance will be Friday in the Old Barn of the Pickaway Country Club when dancing will be enjoyed from 9 until 1. This is the last of the class activities of commencement week and is for members of the graduating class and their dates.

Bill Kessler and his orchestra of Lancaster will furnish the program of dance music.

The plans for the dance are in charge of Miss Jane Paul, Bob Wallace, Miss Mary Pickard, Miss Regina Thornton, Miss Mary Jane Bowers, Clarence Thorne and Tom Harden.

D. U. V. Meeting

The annual memorial services of the Daughters of Union Veterans were held Tuesday at a well attended meeting of the organization in the Post room, Memorial Hall.

Mrs. Frank Rader, president, was in charge of the ritualistic work of the business hour when a class of candidates was initiated. Plans were made to attend the D. U. V. State Convention June 16 at Columbus. It was announced that members having birthdays in July, August and September would be honored at a birthday party at the next meeting. It was requested that the names of these members be reported to Mrs. Rader.

Miss Emma Mader reported that the flowers donated by the public for Memorial Day had been arranged in 100 bouquets, each being placed on a soldier's grave.

It was also reported that there

Essay by Mary K. Pile Wins $5 Papyrus Award

Contest Judging Results Told At Meeting

Miss Mary Katherine Pile, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Pile of Edison Avenue, won the prize in the essay contest of the Circleville Papyrus Club, the winner being announced at the club meeting Tuesday at the home of Miss Margaret Rooney, East Union Street. Miss Pile, a Junior of Circleville High School, received an award of $5 for her essay on the subject, "Ignorance of Coming Events."

The contest sponsored by the Papyrus Club was open to any member of the Junior or Senior Classes of Circleville High School. It closed May 24. Judges in the contest were Miss Jeannette Reichelderfer, North Court Street, Loren Pace, Circleville High School faculty member, and the Rev. L. C. Sherburne of the Papyrus Club. The winning essay will be published in the Thursday issue of The Daily Herald.

Two of the better essays were read at the Tuesday meeting. Mrs. W. W. Robinson read an original poem which had been published recently in the Unity magazine. Robert Watts read an original article, closing the program.

Club members present were Mrs. E. O. Crites, Mrs. Charles Gilmore, Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Milton Kellstadt, Mrs. C. C. Watts, Mrs. Richard Jones, Mrs. W. Emerson Downing, Mrs. Hulise Hays, Miss Rooney, George W. Groom, the Rev. Mr. Sherburne and Robert Watts.

Mrs. Watts will entertain the club in two weeks.

Luther League
The June meeting of the Luther League was held Tuesday in the Trinity Lutheran parish house with George Fischer, vice president, in charge.

It was decided to send two delegates from the league to the summer camp "Greenwood Lake" at Delaware. The camp period opens June 25 and closes June 29. Several members of the league are planning to attend.

The league also voted to sponsor another series of Volley Ball games during the summer months. These will be played on the court back of the parish house.

The Misses Betty Binkley and Lena M. Webb, were appointed to make out the teams and schedules of play. They will be assisted by Paul Walters and Gail Barthelmas. The games will begin the week of June 10.

Gladden Troutman led the group in singing several songs at the close of the business hour.

The delicious lunch was served by the June committee comprised of Ethyl May, Jane Barthelmas, Ethel Hussey, Theodore Koch, John Leist, Gail List, Margaret List, Jean List, Audrey Martin and Clark Martin.

About 65 members and guests were present for the evening.

Annual Senior Class Dance
The Senior Class Dance will be Friday in the Old Barn of the Pickaway Country Club when dancing will be enjoyed from 9 until 1. This is the last of the class activities of commencement week and is for members of the graduating class and their dates.

Lesnevich And Conn Vie In Detroit Ring Tonight

DETROIT, June 5—Gus Lesnevich, the hard-hitting Russian from New Jersey and Billy Conn, the smiling Irishman who fights with well timed finesse, clash in Olympia Stadium tonight in a 15-round bout with Conn's light heavyweight title at stake.

Conn was a 7 to 5 favorite early today, but fight fans expected those odds to drop to 6 to 5 by the time the two men entered the ring before an anticipated 13,000 or 14,000 fans.

The champion, who last week apparently was having trouble making the 175 pound weight limit, has shaved his poundage down to 173. Lesnevich, who was counting on his hard right to jar Conn from his throne, hovered around the 175 pound mark.

Few persons conceded Conn a chance of scoring a knockout, the majority feeling he would win via the decision route. But Conn himself, nettled at reports that he lacked the punch to get a K. O. was determined to turn on the heat at the earliest opportunity. Conn, 23 years old, has engaged in 56 fights and won 49, eight via the knockout route and 41 on decisions. He lost seven decisions. He took the light heavyweight title last July 13 when he scored a 15-round victory in New York over Melio Bettina.

The challenger, 25 years old, has fought the same number of times. He won 14 times on knockouts and was awarded 32 decisions. Five times he fought to a draw and five times he was defeated.

MILLERS CLIMB INTO A. A. LEAD OVER KASEY '9

COLUMBUS, June 5—The Minneapolis Millers swept into first place in the American Association standings today after they trimmed Toledo, 11-6. The Kansas City Blues were losing to Louisville, 2-0.

Yank Terry was Kansas City's nemesis as the Blues dropped from the top spot. Terry set the hard-hitting Blues down with but four hits as the Louisville Colonels extended their winning streak to four straight.

In other tilts Vic Fraserier pitched the St. Paul Saints to an 8-3 win over the Columbus Red Birds while Milwaukee downed Indianapolis, 4-2.

There are no changes in the loop schedule tonight.

King Carl Hubbell Tough In Pinches; Brooks Thump Cards Before 23,500.

By Ed Kieley.

NEW YORK, June 5—A few years ago baseball men, if given a choice, would have selected Dizzy Dean over Carl Hubbell because the Diz was young and strong and seemed destined to last many seasons longer than the aging, skinny giant left-hander.

Yet today as the talkative Dean, with an ailing arm, headed south for the minors, Hubbell was oiling up his elongated pitching arm for another successful season.

The screwball specialist, with a "sophomore" once given up for dead because of a chipped elbow, won his fifth consecutive victory of the year yesterday as the New York Giants stopped the league-leading Cincinnati Reds 5 to 4. To make it more convincing that he is far from ready to hang up his spikes, King Carl knocked in the winning run with a single in the eighth.

Meanwhile, the Chicago Cubs unleashed some latent batting power to smash out 15 hits and overwhelm the Philadelphia Phillies, 12 to 6. Charley Root, another veteran who believes that life begins at 40, won this contest with a masterful relief job in which he held the Phils scoreless for five cantos.

Dodgers Move Up
The Brooklyn Dodgers moved up into within one game of the league-leading Reds by smashing the St. Louis Cardinals 10 to 1 in a night game at St. Louis. It was Vito Tamulis' third win without defeats. A crowd of 23,500 saw the Cards' first home night game.

The Pittsburgh Pirates attracted a crowd of 20,319 fans to their first home night game in which they trounced the Boston Bees 14 to 2. Judge K. M. Landis and Ford Frick attended.

In the American League the Cleveland Indians lost an opportunity to unseat the first-place Boston Red Sox. The Indians, only one game behind, split a double-header with the Washington Senators while the Red Sox dropped a 5 to 3 decision to the lowly St. Louis Browns.

The Senators won the opener with a 7 to 2 victory, young Ken Chase getting credit for the win. In the nightcap, Al Smith, for years a relief pitcher in the National League, chalked up his fifth victory against no defeats with a 3 to 2 triumph. Smith

Lesnevich And Conn Vie In Detroit Ring Tonight

DETROIT, June 5—Gus Lesnevich, the hard-hitting Russian from New Jersey and Billy Conn, the smiling Irishman who fights with well timed finesse, clash in Olympia Stadium tonight in a 15-round bout with Conn's light heavyweight title at stake.

Conn was a 7 to 5 favorite early today, but fight fans expected those odds to drop to 6 to 5 by the time the two men entered the ring before an anticipated 13,000 or 14,000 fans.

The champion, who last week apparently was having trouble making the 175 pound weight limit, has shaved his poundage down to 173. Lesnevich, who was counting on his hard right to jar Conn from his throne, hovered around the 175 pound mark.

Few persons conceded Conn a chance of scoring a knockout, the majority feeling he would win via the decision route. But Conn himself, nettled at reports that he lacked the punch to get a K. O. was determined to turn on the heat at the earliest opportunity.

Conn, 23 years old, has engaged in 56 fights and won 49, eight via the knockout route and 41 on decisions. He lost seven decisions. He took the light heavyweight title last July 13 when he scored a 15-round victory in New York over Meilo Bettina.

The challenger, 25 years old, has fought the same number of times. He won 14 times on knockouts and was awarded 32 decisions. Five times he fought to a draw and five times he was defeated.

MILLERS CLIMB INTO A. A. LEAD OVER KASEY '9

COLUMBUS, June 5—The Minneapolis Millers swept into first place in the American Association standings today after they trimmed Toledo, 11-6. The Kansas City Blues were losing to Louisville, 2-0.

Yank Terry was Kansas City's nemesis as the Blues dropped from the top spot. Terry set the hard-hitting Blues down with but four hits as the Louisville Colonels extended their winning streak to four straight.

In other tilts Vic Frasier pitched the St. Paul Saints to an 8-3 win over the Columbus Red Birds while Milwaukee downed Indianapolis, 4-3.

There are no changes in the loop schedule tonight.

Smith, however, had to be saved by Bob Feller when Washington started a revolt in the ninth.

Edgar Smith, the first lefthander to face the New York Yankees since May 20, halted the world's champions four-game winning streak by allowing only seven hits as the Chicago White Sox won 7 to 3. Joe Kuhel rapped out two round-trippers for the victors.

Lesnevich And Conn Vie In Detroit Ring Tonight

DETROIT, June 5—Gus Lesnevich, the hard-hitting Russian from New Jersey and Billy Conn, the smiling Irishman who fights with well timed finesse, clash in Olympia Stadium tonight in a 15-round bout with Conn's light heavyweight title at stake.

Conn was a 7 to 5 favorite early today, but fight fans expected those odds to drop to 6 to 5 by the time the two men entered the ring before an anticipated 13,000 or 14,000 fans.

The champion, who last week apparently was having trouble making the 175 pound weight limit, has shaved his poundage down to 173. Lesnevich, who was counting on his hard right to jar Conn from his throne, hovered around the 175 pound mark.

Few persons conceded Conn a chance of scoring a knockout, the majority feeling he would win via the decision route. But Conn himself, nettled at reports that he lacked the punch to get a K. O., was determined to turn on the heat at the earliest opportunity.

Conn, 23 years old, has engaged in 56 fights and won 49, eight via the knockout route and 41 on decisions. He lost seven decisions. He took the light heavyweight title last July 13 when he scored a 15-round victory in New York over Mello Bettina.

The challenger, 25 years old, has fought the same number of times. He won 14 times on knockouts and was awarded 32 decisions. Five times he fought to a draw and five times he was defeated.

MILLERS CLIMB INTO A. A. LEAD OVER KASEY '9

COLUMBUS, June 5—The Minneapolis Millers swept into first place in the American Association standings today after they trimmed Toledo, 11-6. The Kansas City Blues were losing to Louisville, 2-0.

Yank Terry was Kansas City's nemesis as the Blues dropped from the top spot. Terry set the hard-hitting Blues down with but four hits as the Louisville Colonels extended their winning streak to four straight.

In other tilts Vic Frasier pitched the St. Paul Saints to an 8-3 win over the Columbus Red Birds while Milwaukee downed Indianapolis, 4-3.

There are no changes in the loop schedule tonight.

LOSS TO GIANTS CUTS CINCINNATI EDGE OVER LOOP

King Carl Hubbell Tough In Pinches; Brooks Thump Cards Before 23,500

By Ed Kiely

NEW YORK, June 5—A few years ago baseball men, if given a choice, would have selected Dizzy Dean over Carl Hubbell because the Diz was young and strong and seemed destined to last many seasons longer than the aging, skinny giant lefthander.

Yet today as the talkative Dean, with an ailing arm, headed south for the minors, Hubbell was oiling up his elongated pitching arm for another successful season.

The screwball specialist, with a "sounphone" once given up for dead because of a chipped elbow, won his fifth consecutive victory of the year yesterday as the New York Giants stopped the league-leading Cincinnati Reds 5 to 4. To make it more convincing that he is far from ready to hang up his spikes, King Carl knocked in the winning run with a single in the eighth.

Meanwhile, the Chicago Cubs unleashed some latent batting power to smash out 15 hits and overwhelm the Philadelphia Phillies, 12 to 6. Charley Root, another veteran who believes that life begins at 40, won this contest with a masterful relief job in which he held the Phils scoreless for five cantos.

Dodgers Move Up

The Brooklyn Dodgers moved up into within one game of the league-leading Reds by smashing the St. Louis Cardinals 10 to 1 in a night game at St. Louis. It was Vito Tamulis' third win without defeats. A crowd of 23,500 saw the Cards' first home night game.

The Pittsburgh Pirates attracted a crowd of 20,319 fans to their first home night game in which they trounced the Boston Bees 14 to 2. Judge K. M. Landis and Ford Frick attended.

In the American League the Cleveland Indians lost an opportunity to unseat the first-place Boston Red Sox. The Indians, only one game behind, split a double-header with the Washington Senators while the Red Sox dropped a 5 to 3 decision to the lowly St. Louis Browns.

The Senators won the opener with a 7 to 2 victory, young Ken Chase getting credit for the win. In the nightcap, Al Smith, for years a relief pitcher in the National League, chalked up his fifth victory against no defeats with a 3 to 2 triumph. Smith, however, had to be saved by Bob Feller when Washington started a revolt in the ninth.

Edgar Smith, the first lefthander to face the New York Yankees since May 20, halted the world's champions four-game winning streak by allowing only seven hits as the Chicago White Sox won 7 to 3. Joe Kuhel rapped out two round-trippers for the victors.

Democrats Select Carl Leist As New Chairman

35 Committee Members At Organization Meeting Tuesday Evening

GOELLER VICE CHAIRMAN

John S. Ritt and Clark K. Hunsicker To Fill Other Positions

Pickaway County's Democratic Executive Committee organized Tuesday evening in the Common Pleas room of the courthouse by choosing Carl C. Leist, Pleasant Street, former city solicitor and son of C. A. Leist, former committee chairman, as the new party leader.

Mr. Leist will assume his duties immediately, the committee joining with the Central Committee in making plans for conduct of the fall campaign.

The new chairman succeeds John F. Mader, East Main Street, who is now a member of the Central committee. Mr. Mader served during the last few months of the last term, succeeding Lawrence B. Goeller, who resigned after service of several years. Mr. Mader declared that he was not a candidate for reelection as chairman.

Mr. Goeller was elected Tuesday evening as vice chairman of the committee to serve with Mr. Leist and with Lawrence J. Johnson, new chairman of the central committee.

Election of Mr. Leist completes reorganization of both parties in the county, the Republicans having named Tom A. Renick and John E. Walters to serve new terms as chairman of the G.O.P. Executive and Central committees.

John S. Ritt and Clark K. Hunsicker were elected treasurer and secretary, respectively, of the Democratic committee at the Tuesday meeting.

Thirty-five Executive committee members attended the session, several of them taking part in discussions that preceded the election of the new chairman.

Members of the Democratic executive committee include Mr. Goeller, Mr. Ritt, Clarence Helvering, Mr. Johnson, William T. J. Howard, George G. Adkins, George Groom, G. W. Himrod, Mr. Hunsicker, Mr. Leist, Dr. O. J. Towers, John Himrod, James Mowery, Emory Reay, George LeMay, Fred Betts, Walter Hedges, Tom Accord, Guy Cline, David Dunnick, J. D. Butts, James H. List, E. B. Hay, James Tootle, A. H. Crownover, Harry Orihood, Harry Briggs, John T. Dick, Paul E. Adkins, Lawrence Spencer, Willson Spangler, Guy B. Gulick, J. C. Borror, W. M. Beavers, O. M. Beckett, J. B. Cronley, Cecil Noecker, C. E. Meyers and Ward Peck.

Eugene Dewey, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Dewey, 603 South Court Street, is one of more than 400 students receiving awards for achievement in various extra-curricular activities at Capital University last week, during the annual Award Week.

Each extra-curricular activity that annually receives a grant from the College Board of Activities, also recognizes its individual members by an award which may be a certificate, pin, key, cup, or plaque. Presentations are made for an entire week during the regular daily chapel period.

The biggest division of awards went to those participating in athletics. The musical organizations were next in number.

PILOT TRAINING COURSE READY AT OHIO STATE

Summer Program Available For Ohloans Seeking Education

College-age young people of Circleville desiring a summer course in civil pilot training at no cost may have that opportunity at Ohio State University in Columbus.

The university has been asked by the Civil Aeronautics Authority to cooperate in an intensive summer course leading to a private pilot's license.

While details have not yet been worked out, it is expected that the course will be open to both men and women between the ages of 18 and 25; that it will be open to present Ohio State students and recent graduates, as well as to students of other colleges and universities who may be spending the summer in or near Columbus.

It is not expected that those enrolling for the air course will need to be registered for other studies at Ohio State.

Those interested in the summer course are asked to take, mail, or telephone their names and addresses to the Information Desk, first floor of the Administration Building, on the campus, in order that complete details and application blanks may be mailed them when ready.

In the meantime Ohio State also is listing the names and addresses of those desiring to take a civil pilot training program next fall which will be similar to that offered during the year now ending.

More Details for Trip Of Guardsmen Complete

COLUMBUS, June 5—The nearly 10,000 troops of Ohio's 37th Division and General Headquarters Reserve will participate in the large-scale Second Army maneuver to be in the vicinity of Camps McCoy and Williams near Sparta, Wis., August 11 to 31, according to Maj. Gen. Gilson D. Light, the adjutant general.

The Ohioans will join with regulars and guardsmen from Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Indiana, Kentucky and West Virginia in the war game which will stress modern methods of increased mobility, fire power and shock action.

More than 65,000 troops will be concentrated in the Wisconsin woods to gain valuable training in mobilization, movement of troops to and from concentration areas, tactical operations and the organization and functioning of the various supply services.

Special training will be given for defense against mechanized attack, security measures against air attack while marching and the use of camouflage. Bivouacs will be concealed from air observation and motor movements during the daylight hours will be restricted to single vehicles.

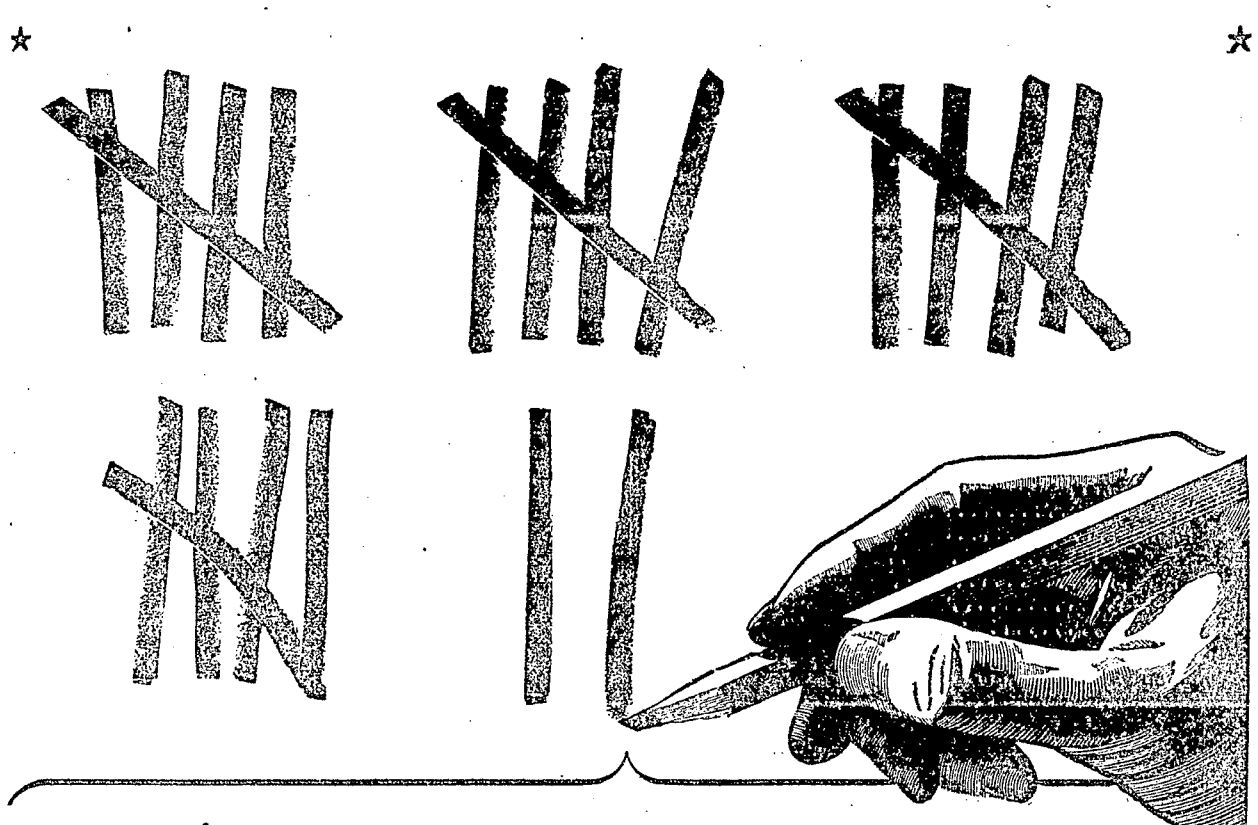

Base camps for the Ohio troops will be at Warrens, Camp Williams and Wyeville. More than 20,000 regulars including the recently stream-lined 5th Division and the crack 7th Cavalry Brigade from Fort Knox, Ky., will be in the field. All troops will be under Lieut. Gen. Stanley H. Ford, Chicago, commanding the Second Army.

A navy recruiting officer from Columbus will be in Circleville at the postoffice Friday between the hours of 9:30 and 12 noon. With the large increase of personnel the young man enlisting in the Navy has unlimited chances for advancement, at present there is no waiting list for enlistment. The navy is open for enlistment of young men between the ages of 18 and 31.

Democrats Select Carl Leist As New Chairman

35 Committee Members At Organization Meeting Tuesday Evening

GOELLER VICE CHAIRMAN

John S. Ritt and Clark K. Hunsicker To Fill Other Positions

Pickaway County's Democratic Executive committee organized Tuesday evening in the Common Pleas room of the courthouse by choosing Carl C. Leist, Pleasant Street, former city solicitor and son of C. A. Leist, former committee chairman, as the new party leader.

Mr. Leist will assume his duties immediately, the committee joining with the Central Committee in making plans for conduct of the fall campaign.

The new chairman succeeds John F. Mader, East Main Street, who is now a member of the Central committee. Mr. Mader served during the last few months of the last term, succeeding Lawrence E. Goeller, who resigned after service of several years. Mr. Mader declared that he was not a candidate for reelection as chairman.

Mr. Goeller was elected Tuesday evening as vice chairman of the committee to serve with Mr. Leist and with Lawrence J. Johnson, new chairman of the central committee.

Election of Mr. Leist completes reorganization of both parties in the county, the Republicans having named Tom A. Renick and John E. Walters to serve new terms as chairman of the G.O.P. Executive and Central committees.

John S. Ritt and Clark K. Hunsicker were elected treasurer and secretary, respectively, of the Democratic committee at the Tuesday meeting.

Thirty-five Executive committee members attended the session, several of them taking part in discussions that preceded the election of the new chairman.

Members of the Democratic executive committee include Mr. Goeller, Mr. Ritt, Clarence Helvering, Mr. Johnson, William T. J. Howard, George G. Adkins, George Groom, G. W. Hinrod, Mr. Hunsicker, Mr. Leist, Dr. O. J. Towers, John Hinrod, James Mowery, Emory Reay, George LeMay, Fred Betts, Walter Hedges, Tom Accord, Guy Cline, David Dunnick, J. D. Butts, James H. List, E. B. Hay, James Tootle, A. H. Crownover, Harry Orihood, Harry Briggs, John T. Dick, Paul E. Adkins, Lawrence Spencer, Willson Spangler, Guy B. Gulick, J. C. Borror, W. M. Beavers, O. M. Beckett, J. B. Cromley, Cecil Noecker, C. E. Meyers and Ward Peck.

CIRCLEVILLE BOY WINS HONORS AT CAPITAL U.

Eugene Dewey, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Dewey, 603 South Court Street, is one of more than 400 students receiving awards for achievement in various extra-curricular activities at Capital University last week, during the annual Award Week.

Each extra-curricular activity that annually receives a grant from the College Board of Activities, also recognizes its individual members by an award which may be a certificate, pin, key, cup, or plaque. Presentations are made for an entire week during the regular daily chapel period.

The biggest division of awards went to those participating in athletics. The musical organizations were next in number.

PILOT TRAINING COURSE READY AT OHIO STATE

Summer Program Available For Ohios Seeking Education

College-age young people of Circleville desiring a summer course in civil pilot training at no cost may have that opportunity at Ohio State University in Columbus.

The university has been asked by the Civil Aeronautics Authority to cooperate in an intensive summer course leading to a private pilot's license.

While details have not yet been worked out, it is expected that the course will be open to both men and women between the ages of 18 and 25; that it will be open to present Ohio State students and recent graduates, as well as to students of other colleges and universities who may be spending the summer in or near Columbus.

It is not expected that those enrolling for the air course will need to be registered for other studies at Ohio State.

Those interested in the summer course are asked to take, mail, or telephone their names and addresses to the Information Desk, first floor of the Administration Building, on the campus, in order that complete details and application blanks may be mailed them when ready.

In the meantime Ohio State also is listing the names and addresses of those desiring to take a civil pilot training program next fall which will be similar to that offered during the year now ending.

More Details for Trip Of Guardsmen Complete

COLUMBUS, June 5—The nearly 10,000 troops of Ohio's 37th Division and General Headquarters Reserve will participate in the large-scale Second Army maneuver to be in the vicinity of Camps McCoy and Williams near Sparta, Wis., August 11 to 31, according to Maj. Gen. Gilson D. Light, the adjutant general.

The Ohioans will join with regulars and guardsmen from Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Indiana, Kentucky and West Virginia in the war game which will stress modern methods of increased mobility, fire power and shock action.

More than 65,000 troops will be concentrated in the Wisconsin woods to gain valuable training in mobilization, movement of troops to and from concentration areas, tactical operations and the organization and functioning of the various supply services.

Special training will be given for defense against mechanized attack, security measures against air attack while marching and the use of camouflage. Bivouacs will be concealed from air observation and motor movements during the daylight hours will be restricted to single vehicles.

Base camps for the Ohio troops will be at Warrens, Camp Williams and Wyeville. More than 20,000 regulars including the recently stream-lined 5th Division and the crack 7th Cavalry Brigade from Fort Knox, Ky., will be in the field. All troops will be under Lieut. Gen. Stanley H. Ford, Chicago, commanding the Second Army.

A navy recruiting officer from Columbus will be in Circleville at the postoffice Friday between the hours of 9:30 and 12 noon. With the large increase of personnel the young man enlisting in the Navy has unlimited chances for advancement, at present there is no waiting list for enlistment. The navy is open for enlistment of young men between the ages of 18 and 31.
